Slocan Move For Wide Boycott of Doukhobors Grows

English-speaking Residents of Valley Ask Mine Managers Discharge Members of Sect; Barring of Children From Public Schools in Kootenay Suggested

Crew Again Works At Radio Site

Nelson, B.C., April 17.—Mine managers in the Slocan area of interior British Columbia were being asked today to discharge all Doukhobor employees as English-speaking residents laid plans to extend their boycott of the Russian religious sect in retribution for bombings and incendiary attacks that have destroyed or damaged eleven buildings since April 4.

Meanwhile British Columbia police at Nelson interpreted recent sale of fifty or sixty cattle in nearby Krestova as evidence the Sons of Freedom, recalcitrant Doukhobors whose failure to pay community taxes and abide by community laws, has resulted in their expulsion from the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, intended to move to a new settlement.

Officers said they believed the Sons were "hiding themselves of all burdens" in preparation for a trek from their present Krestova stronghold. Police said such sales had been held several times recently.

WOULD BAR SCHOOLS

Vancouver, April 17 (Canadian Press).—English-speaking residents of the Slocan Valley today answered recent incursions in that and other West Kootenay districts with threats to boycott Doukhobors and bar their children from British Columbia public schools.

The boycott and school bar threats came from Blewett in the Slocan Valley, twenty miles north of Nelson, and one of the communities which in the last three weeks suffered from firings which destroyed or damaged eleven buildings.

It came at the end of the two weeks which saw a number of developments, including stoppage of work for a time on the radio beam station at Grand Forks, one of the directional links in the projected trans-Canada air service, when workmen were "chased off" by Doukhobor threats.

News came of the termination of a dispute between members of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, orthodox sect, and members of the Sons of Freedom at Grand Forks when British Columbia police stood guard while the dissident Sons of Freedom members were moved to nearby Gilpin to join others of their faction.

BOYCOTT MOVE

Blewett residents called the mass meeting at Appledale in the Slocan last night. Its object was discussion of a "complete boycott of Doukhobors until the government has taken action against them." Permission from the provincial government to bar Doukhobor children in the Slocan from regular schools; a request that Permits for eight new homes, ranging in value from $1,500 to $5,000, were issued this week in Oak Bay and Saanich. Five of the permits were issued in Oak Bay.

The Oak Bay permits were issued to W. P. Pease for a seven-room dwelling at 2840 Cadboro Bay Road, estimated to cost $5,000; A. W. B. Jones for a seven-room dwelling at 1320 Monterey Avenue, to cost $4,000; H. S. Goodwin for a six-room dwelling at 2518 Cavendish Avenue, to cost $3,000; Thomas Gwilt for a five-room dwelling at 1438 St. David Street, to cost $2,850, and A. Cave for a four-room dwelling at 677 Hampshire Road, to cost $2,200.

The Saanich permits were taken out by James Henson for a five-room dwelling at Obed Avenue and Qu'Appelle Street, to cost $2,100; A. Roberts for a four-room frame dwelling on Earl Grey Street, to cost $1,800, and R. Lindsay for a four-room dwelling on Palliser Avenue, to cost $1,400.

No permits for new homes were issued in either the city or Esquimalt this week. Several permits were taken out for minor repairs and alterations.

Award of a contract for a $5,500 residence to be built for W. B. Pease on Cadboro Bay Road, to T. Lambie, is announced by P. Leonard James, local architect. It will be a one and a half story dwelling of frame and stucco construction with hot water heating. Mr. James also reports the placing of a contract with Leslie Scott for additions costing $2,500 to a dwelling owned by E. W. Hockley on West Saanich Road.

Quiet on Oshawa Front As Mayor Tours

When the above picture was taken just outside the entrance to the parts building of the General Motors plant in Oshawa, Ont., a few men had gone to work in that branch, but, apart from jeers and catcalls from the pickets, there was no violence. ## Allocations in Provincial Government's Programme For 1937 to Include Surfacing and Reconstruction On Mountain Road; West Coast Highway to Be Extended

Further reconstruction work on the Malahat drive from Mile 13 north, surfacing of the stretch now being completed, a piece of construction on the West Coast Road from the end of the present road at Phillips Canyon and surfacing of all highway that was reconstructed in 1936 are included in the provincial government's road programme for 1937. Hon. P. M. MacPherson, Minister of Public Works, indicated today.

"By the end of the year we will have the Island Highway surfaced 100 per cent from Victoria to Campbell River," the minister said.

Mr. MacPherson said he was not prepared yet to give the actual details on the island work as the programme is still under consideration. The projects for reconstruction have been forwarded to Ottawa for approval and as soon as this is received contracts will be called and the jobs started.

UP-ISLAND PLANS

In the upper part of the island there will be considerable construction in the Cowichan area, several pieces of surfacing between Parksville and Alberni and between Nanaimo and Campbell River, with construction on the Alberni summit and in the Bowser area to bring the highway up to standard. The "Dardanelles," a narrow section on the Alberni road, will be widened and graded.

This work is all part of the government's programme for the province which includes $1,000,000 worth of construction and 280 miles of surfacing.

Most of the construction jobs, said Mr. MacPherson, will be in the extension of work undertaken last year. The surfacing will be laid on the completed sections.

DEFINITE POLICY

"We are now working with a definite objective," Mr. MacPherson stated. "The Dominion money will be used each year on improving the standard of our main highway and the following year we will surface the sections that are completed."

"Under this plan we should have a hard-surfaced highway from Vancouver to the Alberta boundary by 1940."

On the main highway out of Vancouver, construction and surfacing will be continued eastward from Rosedale through the Fraser canyon and by the end of the year there will be only seventy miles between Vancouver and Kamloops not dust-proofed.

"Surfacing of 260 miles this year will raise to between 1,100 and 1,200 miles the amount of dustless highway in the province," he said.

PREMIER SAYS VOTE IS VALID

Government Can Get People's Opinion on Any Question, He Says

When validity of the provincial government's decision to hold a plebiscite on health insurance was raised, Premier Pattullo today replied sharply to the suggestion.

Speaking at an election meeting, T. G. Norris, K.C., Conservative candidate in South Okanagan, challenged the government's right to call a vote on the issue.

When this was called to his attention, the Premier said:

"There is no law nor statute to prevent the government submitting any question at any time to the verdict of the people. If Mr. Norris made the statement attributed to him I think Mr. Norris will have to polish up on his law."

Ontario Premier, Finding Men's Spokesmen Telephoning From Toronto to International Union President, Says There Will Be "No Negotiations by Remote Control"

Canadian Press

Toronto, April 17.—Premier Mitchell Hepburn's peace parley to end the Oshawa General Motors strike broke down this afternoon before conversations really got started.

Two hours of dickering over the exact status of union representatives invited to the conference ended when J. L. Cohen, union counsel, left the conference room and, with Hugh Thompson, C.I.O. organizer, and C. H. Millard, president of the Oshawa local union, tried to telephone Homer Martin, international union president.

PREMIER RUNS

When the Premier's secretary found Cohen, Thompson and Millard trying to telephone from the telephone in the vault to which they had been shown by a pressman, he reported back to the Premier. The Premier ran out through the waiting-room jammed with pressmen and news photographers, and up to the half-open door of the vault.

"Who are you phoning? Are you phoning Martin?" he demanded. One or two of the trio nodded assent. The Premier turned about, strode back through the waiting-room and declared with finality: "Good afternoon, gentlemen. There are going to be no negotiations by remote control here."

H. J. Carmichael, vice-president and general manager, and J. B. Highfield, plant manager of General Motors, were present for the company, ready to join in the negotiations if a conference of the two sides had been started.

UNANIMOUS SUPPORT

Oshawa, Ont., April 17.—Homer Martin, international president of the United Automobile Workers of America, today announced all unions in United States plants of the General Motors Corporation had expressed unanimous support for the Oshawa strikers in a telephone conference today.

His statement: "I have just conferred by long distance telephone in a conference hook-up with all General Motors unions in the United States involving forty-five locals and representing 110,000 men, and discussed with them the Oshawa situation."

"It is their understanding that the Detroit agreement covered the Canadian plants. They unequivocally state that General Motors must live up to their agreement and expressed themselves as unanimously in support of the local chapter here."

LOYALISTS' GAINS

Associated Press
Madrid, April 17.—Government infantry, artillery, tanks and planes were hurled today against the Teruel salient with which Gen. Francisco Franco had hoped to sever the "life line" between Valencia and the government's ally, Catalonia.

In a surprise manoeuvre, the Madrid-Valencia forces were reported to have made a long advance intended to encircle Teruel, about 150 miles east of here and sixty miles from Germany between 11 p.m. and midnight, an Air Ministry communique asserted. When crossing French territory, they flew at between 9,000 and 12,000 feet, without lights, it was charged.

The ministry charged the air line operated between Germany and Burgos served to train pilots for these planes rather than carry on a regular passenger transport service. The communique said that if one of the contraband planes were forced to land in French territory it could represent itself as operating on the Burgos route.

He has called a board meeting for Monday morning to consider the Douglas reply.

German Planes For Gen. Franco

Loyalists Say Machines Flown By Night to Spain

Madrid, April 17.—The government charged today that thirty-six German planes have been secretly flown from Hanover to Burgos, Spain, by Luft-hansa (German commercial airways) pilots under cover of night.

The craft usually have taken off from Germany between 11 p.m. and midnight, an Air Ministry communique asserted. When crossing French territory, they flew at between 9,000 and 12,000 feet, without lights, it was charged.

The ministry charged the air line operated between Germany and Burgos served to train pilots for these planes rather than carry on a regular passenger transport service. The communique said that if one of the contraband planes were forced to land in French territory it could represent itself as operating on the Burgos route.

New Measures to Increase Salmon

Scientific Investigation to Be Started Under Recently Ratified Agreement Between Canada and U.S.

Associated Press

Olympia, Wash., April 17.—With the acceptance by Canada of this country's reservations to the 1930 sockeye treaty, the next steps, Miller Freeman of Seattle told the State Planning Council today, are a scientific investigation and necessary measures for rehabilitation of the salmon runs.

These will be carried on concurrently, Freeman said, and should result in some increase of the sockeye runs, even before regulation begins.

The reservations prevent restoration of fish traps without authorization by the Washington State Legislature, allow regulation only after scientific investigations covering eight years, and provide for an advisory committee made up of representatives of both countries who shall attend meetings of the International Commission created by the treaty.

Slaying of Nazi Is Investigated

Argentine Authorities Act On German Demands After Joseph Riedel Killed

Canadian Press from Havas

Buenos Aires, April 17.—Acting on a demand from the German Embassy, Buenos Aires provincial authorities today ordered an investigation into the death of Joseph Riedel, Nazi leader in Argentina, who was fatally wounded by unknown assailants last Sunday at his home in suburban San Martin.

While some witnesses were reported to have told police the Nazi chief had died in a quarrel with his own followers over alleged misuse of party funds, dispatches from Germany indicated the press there was ascribing Riedel's death to the Communist International.

NEWS SECRET FOR DAYS

The "Fuehrer" of the Nazi organization in this country died early Monday, according to police, from abdominal bullet wounds inflicted the preceding night in the hallway of his home. Argentine authorities kept his death secret until yesterday.

Available information gave no credence to Berlin charges that Communists or other anti-Nazis were responsible for his death.

The Havas news agency said the Nazi chief had given a dying statement which many sources were convinced would show his death to be the result of an internal party squabble.

EXCITEMENT IN BERLIN

Berlin, April 17 (Canadian Press from Havas).—The "cowardly assassination" of Joseph Riedel, Nazi "Fuehrer" in Argentina, caused excitement in official and press circles today.

It was widely charged that Riedel had been killed by Communist agents. Sam Martin, the suburb where he lived and where the attack took place, was described by the press as "a quarter where Jewish Communist elements carry on their intrigues."

Cablegrams of sympathy to the widow of the Nazi leader were sent by Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath and Minister Without Portfolio Rudolf Hees.

The government-controlled press saw the incident as "another Gustloff case."

Dr. Wilhelm Gustloff, German head of the Nazi organization in Switzerland, was killed at Davos early last year by David Frankfurter, Yugoslav Jewish medical student now serving an eighteen-year prison sentence.

Roumania Fears Putsch By Nazis

Government Prepares For Emergency as "Iron Guard" Threatens Coup

Associated Press

Bucharest, Roumania, April 17.—The Roumanian government, fearing a pro-Nazi coup, was ready for any eventuality today as political repercussions of the banishment of ex-Prince Nicholas created tension throughout the nation.

Officials were apprehensive that the banned rightist "Iron Guard," angered because its representatives were not consulted before Nicholas was called for refusing to renounce his commoner wife, might challenge the government.

Tension in the capital was partially relieved by the release pending trial of Prof. Alexander Gherota, who publicly opposed the government's action of stripping Nicholas of his royal rank.

Government officials asserted the Guardists were not interested in the former prince's fate, but were seizing the incident as a political pretext. In Belgrade, Yugoslavia, dispatches from Roumania declared a wave of protest against King Carol's association with Magda Lupescu had swept the nation after Nicholas was read out of the royal family. Authoritative Belgrade reports said Prof. Gherota had been arrested because he asserted in his magazine, "My Creed," that Nicholas's marriage to a commoner was a minor matter compared with the king's long association with Mme. Lupescu.

Havay, B.C., April 17.—Dr. Frank P. Patterson, Conservative Party leader in British Columbia, may run in Dewdney riding in the provincial general election.

C.C.F. OPPOSES CONSTRUCTIVE

Will Fight Connell Candidate in Delta Constituency

Canadian Press

Vancouver, April 17.—The executive of the British Columbia branch of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation today notified party members in the Delta riding they could not, as members of the C.C.F. Party, support a Constructive Party candidate in the provincial general election, and that an official C.C.F. candidate would run in the riding.

Constructive and C.C.F. Delta delegates at a meeting Thursday evening decided to support one candidate in the election, the candidate to be chosen later at a meeting at Langley Prairie.

"We have no alternative but to abide by the decision of the 1936 convention, which declared itself in favor of political independence," Don Smith, executive spokesman, said today. "That can not be changed until the next convention. Meanwhile the Delta proposal of a joint candidate for both parties can not be entertained."

The executive also announced J. S. Woodworth, M.P., Winnipeg, national leader of the party, would arrive here at the end of next week to assist candidates in the general election campaign. He will be accompanied by two Saskatchewan C.C.F. Commons members, M. J. Coldwell, Roseworth-Biggar, and Rev. T. C. Douglas, Weyburn.

London, April 17.—The Earl of Lonsborough, Vice-Admiral of the Yorkshire Coast, died in a nursing home here today. He was forty-two years old.

Lord Lonsborough's naval title was an honorary one long held by his family, and he himself was an officer in the Guards in France during the Great War and was wounded three times.

He was the fourth holder of the earldom, which now becomes extinct. He was also Baron Lonsborough, however, and this title now falls to his cousin, Commander Ernest Denison, a son of the first Lord Lonsborough.

Lord Lonsborough was a brother-in-law of the Marquess of Carisbrooke, grandson of Queen Victoria and brother of the ex-queen of Spain. Lord Lonsborough died of pneumonia. He was prominent in turf, football and greyhound racing circles, and in Bond Street was known as a "Brummell." In 1933 he was placed at the top of a United States list of the world's best-dressed men.

subsidiary here employing 1,700. He assured them there was no break between the Committee for Industrial Organization, of which the U.A.W.A. is a part, in Canada and in the United States.

"I am of the opinion the only way you can deal with General Motors effectively is to put on the kind of a show they put on in the United States," said Millard. "They do not seem to think people can be fair and clean and still be in earnest. They are not going to make any more cars in Canada until they deal with us."

REGRETS DEVELOPMENTS

Canadian Press

Toronto, April 17.—Following is a statement on the Oshawa strike situation made yesterday by Hon. Earl Rowe, M.P., Ontario Conservative leader.

"It is regrettable that there appear to be more conflicting views among politicians at Toronto and Ottawa than between the workers and the employers themselves. As leader of the Liberal-Conservative Party, of course, I will insist always on the maintenance of law and order. This is traditional with me and my party.

"There is always danger when politics is impulsively introduced that the occasion is used to political advantage and the rights of parties to the dispute are obscured and often neglected.

"The citizens of Oshawa, who are directly affected, are to be commended for their common sense, in not being stampeded, when those charged with great responsibility have used less judgment."

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, April 17.—Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario has alienated an important body of people through his actions in connection with the automobile strike at Oshawa," J. S. Woodworth, president of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation and federal member of parliament for Winnipeg North Centre, said here today.

"He has offended the Dominion government by asking for help and then rejecting it and he has alienated the workers as well," Mr. Woodworth said.

Elderly Women Start Life Anew

Associated Press

Madison, Wis., April 16.—"Life begins at sixty," for two Madison women, who "pulled up stakes" today and left the community where they spent most of their lives for a settlement 2,000 miles away to begin an entirely new life.

The white-haired pair, just turning sixty, are Mrs. Frank E. Brown and Mrs. Rose Zweifel. They started for the foothills of the Canadian Rockies near Hazelton, Alta. For thirty-five years they have been good friends. Now they will join Mrs. Brown's husband and enter business in a trading post. Brown is an outfitter and guide for hunting parties.

British Miners Vote On Strike

Threat of General Walkout Deepens as Ballots Are Counted

Canadian Press from Havas

London, April 17.—The threat of a general strike in British coal mines deepened today as first results of a strike vote called by the Mine Workers' Federation indicated sentiment was running strongly for a cessation of work unless union recognition is granted by operators in the Nottinghamshire area.

In the Bedwas, Wales, mining basin, 1,342 workers voted for a strike, with only 142 dissenting. A similar vote was reported in other returns from south Wales. Final results will be known next Tuesday or Wednesday.

The vote was ordered last Thursday on the question of whether or not to strike in protest against development of company unions in Nottinghamshire.

POSTAL WORKERS PROTEST

Postal and telegraph workers in the London area prepared today for a mass meeting tomorrow in protest against the government's refusal to raise wages and reduce working hours.

The workers also intended to protest reported plans of the Postmaster-General's office to enlist them as unpaid "commissioners" to line the route of the Coronation procession May 12.

Efforts to end the strike of 2,000 bus employees in Kent continued fruitless.

NAVAL TALKS ARE SUGGESTED

If Others Come in Hoare Says Britain Would Ratify London Treaty

Canadian Press

London, April 17.—Sir Samuel Hoare, viewing the possibility of an unrestricted naval race with "grave apprehension" yesterday said Great Britain would welcome an opportunity to ratify the London Naval Treaty of 1936 between Britain, France and the United States.

The First Lord of the Admiralty, speaking before the Royal Corps of Naval Constructors, voiced what some believed was an invitation to other powers to meet again across the treaty board.

"I should be lacking in my duty," he said, "if I did not ask other naval powers to think once again of the almost intolerable burden that will be placed on all our shoulders if some restriction is not placed on the size and armament of warships."

Clergyman Is Killed By Fall

Canadian Press

Bristol, Gloucestershire, Eng., April 17.—The mangled, pyramided body of Rev. R. C. Gauntlett, organizing secretary for the Colonial and Continental Church Society in southwest England, was found today outside an apartment building in suburban Clifton. He had apparently fallen sixty feet from the flat he occupied with his wife.

Mr. Gauntlett was educated at Wycliffe College, Toronto, and became rector of Condie, Sask., in 1917, and of Arrol, Sask., in 1919. He came to England in 1923 and lived at Taunton, Somerset, until a few months ago, when he took up residence at Bristol.

When his wife could not find him in their apartment this morning she became alarmed and notified the janitor. A search was organized, leading to discovery of the clergyman's broken body in a hedge below the windows of his flat.

An inquest will be held Monday.

PLEDGE GIVEN ON HEALTH ACT

Weir Promises to Fight For Enlargement of British Columbia Scheme

Canadian Press
Vancouver, April 17.—Hon. George M. Weir, Provincial Secretary and Minister of Education, called on the electorate to put an emphatic "yes" on their health insurance plebiscites in the forthcoming general election in a speech here last night.

"This act is on the statutes," he declared, "and only the Legislature can amend or abolish it. It will be amended if I have my way. It will be enlarged. Some day it will include us all."

The health insurance bill as it stood at present was a compromise, Dr. Weir said, but it was a beginning and he promised to fight to extend and promote the scheme should the electorate vote for it in the plebiscite at the forthcoming election.

"I admit that it doesn't go far enough," Dr. Weir said, "but remember this—there is not a Health Insurance Act in the world that takes care of indigents."

GAINS REWARD
The Provincial Secretary defended the Liberal administration and the achievements in health and education. His department, he said, had inaugurated a vastly improved health preventive service at a reduced cost compared with 1929 and that results were already observable in tuberculosis and venereal disease. He said the "demon cancer" would be the next objective of the provincial health offensive.

Scores Big Votes

VISCOUNT SNOWDEN

Canadian Press
London, April 17.—Statesmanship which cannot avert the catastrophe of another war is "bankrupt," Viscount Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer during the financial crisis of 1931, declared yesterday evening in attack on the British rearmament programme.

"If the war which we are told is probable or inevitable comes," he declared in a letter read at a joint meeting of the Cobden Club and the Public Economy League, "the cost thereof, added to present debt and taxation, means certain financial ruin to the nation."

He expressed dismay at the indifference of the House of Commons and the taxpayers to what he termed the "wartime expenditure in peacetime" involved in the present defence programme.

BRUHN URGING HEDLEY PROBE

Says Government Should Name Royal Commission
Immediately

Canadian Press
Penticton, B.C., April 17.—The provincial government was criticized last night for its handling of the Hedley Amalgamated Gold Mines investigation by Rolf Bruhn, Independent member of the late British Columbia Legislature for Salmon Arm.

Speaking before a British Columbia Constructive Party rally, of which Rev. Robert Connell is leader, Mr. Bruhn said:

"I am not here to criticize the directors of Hedley Amalgamated or anyone else connected with the company, as we don't know all the facts of the case yet, but I am here to criticize the government for not trying to clean up the doubt without delay."

"There is no reason why a royal commission should not have been appointed. The value of the cores (from the Hedley property) has nothing to do with the appointment of a proper investigating body," the former Salmon Arm member declared.

"It is the duty of the government and a duty to the mining industry of the province," said Mr. Bruhn.

Canada Adds to Wheat Acreage

Dwindling and Europe Demanding More, Farmers Increase Their Seeding

Canadian Press
Ottawa, April 17.—News from the midwest agricultural front indicates Canada's wheat bins are emptier than they have been this time of year since 1923, an assurance there will be no recurrence for a while of the surplus that plagued farmers at the time the King government took office a year and a half ago.

Advance information reaching the capital points to a considerable increase in wheat acreage over that of last summer as farmers, encouraged by wheat hunger of war-frightened Europe, dwindling world supplies and rising prices, prepare to reap a harvest of gold such as many have not seen for years.

A statistical report on Thursday showed Canadian stocks of wheat at the end of March totaled 118,005,450 bushels, compared with 246,797,301 at the same time a year before.

BRITISH TAX LIMIT REACHED

Canadian Press
London, April 17.—A warning that British taxation in times of peace "has now reached a figure which, if extended, will seriously affect the prosperity of the nation" was contained in a resolution adopted by the Association of British Chambers of Commerce meeting here yesterday.

The association adopted, by unanimous vote, a report of the agriculture and industry committee stressing the necessity for linking the problem of food storage and provisioning for war use with Britain's peacetime agriculture policy.

RULING AGAINST U.S. SECURITY ACT

Associated Press
Boston, April 17.—The United States circuit court of appeals yesterday ruled unconstitutional both the unemployment insurance tax provision and the old age assistance provision of the Social Security Act.

Two of the three justices held the provisions of the act had been challenged by George P. Davis, a public utility stockholder.

The court in ruling the unemployment insurance tax unconstitutional said "the issue is not what powers Congress ought to have to meet conditions as viewed by the executive and legislative branches of the government, but what powers are vested in Congress under the constitution."

She underwent police investigation before she was taken to court.

Canada Buys Cosimo Canvas

Painting of Italian Master
Gallery at Ottawa

New York, April 17.—The sale of Piero di Cosimo's famous painting "Vulcan and Aeolus as Teachers of Mankind" to the National Gallery of Canada at Ottawa was announced yesterday by the Scheffer Galleries. The Italian master's canvas was for more than 100 years a part of the noted collection of the Marquess of Latham at Dalkeith, Scotland.

The picture, painted between 1490 and 1500, was brought to New York last winter.

Piero di Cosimo became especially interested in mythology after a visit to Rome in 1482, when he assisted his master, Cosimo Rosselli, in painting frescoes in the Sistine Chapel of the Vatican.

The mythological stories of Greece and Rome made an especial appeal to di Cosimo's active imagination.

In the picture just acquired by the Canadian gallery the action, identified by Professor Erwin Panofsky of Princeton University, includes Vulcan, the Roman god of fire, at his forge beating out a horseshoe, assisted by Aeolus, while a young horseman, mounted, waits for the shoe.

In the foreground a man is sleeping, while behind him a mother attends her husband and child. In the distance four men are building the framework for a cottage. Birds, a camel, a giraffe and a grasshopper are also included in the composition.

Premier Hertzog Explains
Anti-Nazi Law in Southwest Africa

Capetown, April 17.—Unnaturalized Germans in Southwest Africa were responsible for the conditions leading to the South African government's anti-Nazi proclamation in the former German colony, Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog declared in a reply, made public yesterday, to the German government's protest.

"The government has considered the representations of the German government with the greatest care and assures Germany the government of South Africa was not inspired by any unfriendly motives toward the German Reich," the reply said.

"South Africa was guided by the imperative need to ensure proper administration of a territory for which she is responsible and a profound desire to promote ordered development and peaceful progress. South Africa regrets that Germany considered the proclamation a combative measure, as it is directed against practices the commission of which is proved and established and which preclude conciliation."

Southwest Africa is administered by a League of Nations mandate.

Belgian Premier Is to Visit U.S.

Associated Press
Brussels, April 17.—Premier Paul Van Zeeland, trying to find a way to break down world trade barriers, will go to the United States soon to meet President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

His trip will be the second big step in carrying out economic studies undertaken at the behest of France and Great Britain. The first was a discussion here with German Economics Minister Schacht.

A definite date for Premier Van Zeeland's journey probably will be announced soon, his secretary said. The White House already has agreed him the President would be glad to talk with him.

The Premier's job, as interpreted in French government circles, is to find out as precisely as possible what each government is willing to do toward cutting down trade barriers and whether trade agreements must be combined with political agreements or can be entered into separately.

New Coin Issue Soon In Canada

Pieces From One Cent to One Dollar in Circulation
Shortly After Coronation

Canadian Press
Ottawa, April 17.—A new series of Canadian coins will be minted this year, with the likelihood of getting into circulation shortly after the Coronation.

Making the announcement yesterday, Finance Minister Charles Dunning said the denominations would range from one cent to one dollar.

Master dies and punches of the obverse bearing the effigy of King George VI, modeled by T. H. Paget of the Royal Mint, London, are expected here shortly.

The new coins will represent the collaboration of the Canadian, British and French mints. Due to pressure of work on the Royal Mint in London, it was found necessary for the Canadian authorities to enlist cooperation of the Paris mint in the preparation of some of the dies.

CANOE ON DOLLAR
The obverse of all the coins will bear King George's effigy, but the reverse sides will vary. Reverse designs will be as follows:

One dollar—A canoe manned by an Indian and a voyageur, an islet in the background; above, the word "Canada" with the Northern Lights; below, the word "dollar" and the date of the year, with a graining on the edge.

Fifty cents—Between supporters the ensigns armorial of Canada in a shield surmounted by the royal crown, "50 cents" above and "Canada" below, with the date of the year and a graining on the edge.

The twenty-five-cent piece will show a caribou head, the ten cents a fishing schooner, the five cents a beaver, and the one cent a twig of maple.

CANADA TRADE INDEX RISES

Stock Sales Bring Figure to 114.2 For Week

Canadian Press
Ottawa, April 17.—Due to greater volume of car loadings and increase in speculative trading, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics economic index for the week ended April 10 rose from 113.8 to 114.2.

Although the amount of shares traded was up, common stock prices reacted sharply. High grade bonds showed some reaction although quotations remained relatively steady.

The index of car loadings showed a gain of 1 per cent over the preceding week. The freight movement during the first thirteen weeks of the year was 610,688 cars, a gain of about 12 per cent over the same period of last year.

Wholesale prices showed a decline of 0.2 per cent. Grain prices were uneven, a gain having been shown in oats, while other coarse grains recorded reaction. The price of No. 1 northern wheat averaged the same at 1.47%.

Saskatchewan Session Ends

Canadian Press
Regina, April 17.—After a sitting of forty-six days, the third session of the eighth Legislative Assembly of Saskatchewan was prorogued yesterday afternoon. The session opened more than two months ago—February 11.

In all 100 bills were passed, two of which were private bills.

Eggs, coal and wood, grain and mill feed, rolling stock, railway ties and steel rails yesterday were added to the list of exemptions permitted under the 2 per cent consumers' tax.

With these changes and a few minor alterations in matters of administration, the act was approved at the last sitting with only the five members of the opposition, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, voting against it.

Baldwin Heard In Empire Talk

Spiritual Leadership Is Duty,
He Says in Radio Broadcast

Canadian Press
London, April 17.—The British Empire's solemn duty to the world at this time is one of spiritual leadership, Prime Minister Baldwin said last night in broadcasting to the Empire the first of a series of talks on "Responsibilities of Empire."

Leadership was the most important need if peace and prosperity were to be achieved out of the present world bewilderment and doubt, he said.

The British Empire was best qualified to provide that leadership, he declared. "We have demonstrated in the world in actual practice that difficulties can be resolved by discussion as they cannot be resolved by force."

Mr. Baldwin spoke from his country home at Chequers, where he is spending the weekend. The series of talks will be continued by other statesmen in the near future.

EDEN DEFENDS SPAIN POLICY

British Government In Constant Touch With Bilbao Situation, He Says

Canadian Press from Havas
London, April 17.—Foreign Secretary Eden again defended the government's Spanish policy in the House of Commons yesterday.

"I am constantly receiving information from our naval authorities on the spot," Mr. Eden declared in reply to a question from Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George.

Reports that Bilbao harbor was free of mines were from Basque sources, the Foreign Secretary said, and had been relayed by the British consul there. They were not an expression of the consul's own opinion.

LEADERS CRUISING
Rt. Hon. Clement Attlee, Labor leader, remarked the British naval commanders, on whom Mr. Eden said he was depending for information, were either out at sea or else at the French border port of St. Jean de Luz.

"Would not the British consul in Bilbao itself be in a better position to estimate the alleged dangers of shipping in the harbor?" Mr. Attlee asked.

The consul, Mr. Eden replied, was perfectly qualified to judge conditions in Bilbao itself, but was not qualified in the same degree to estimate the extent of maritime security.

The Parliamentary Labor Party, at a caucus Thursday decided to keep after the government on the Bilbao situation.

Use Mergolized Wax All-purpose Cream to Beautify Your Skin

The bleaching and beautifying process recommended by most beauty authorities is one that will hasten nature's own way of gradually peeling off the dead outer layer of skin cells. That is exactly the method Mergolized Wax follows. Mergolized Wax very gently flakes off the dull, dark outer skin cells in tiny unseen particles. This keeps the skin constantly renewing itself. Such natural activity in the skin wards off the possible appearance of blemishes.

Mergolized Wax keeps the skin in a healthy glowing condition. Use it daily. Your complexion will always be fine, textured, velvety-smooth and young-looking. Mergolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty.

ISLAND ROAD LINK URGED

McDowell Says Victoria Has Big Opportunity in Coast
Highway

The completion of the road from Jordan River to Port Renfrew was described as "Victoria's Big Opportunity" by C. J. McDowell in an address to Ward Three Liberal Association last night.

Mr. McDowell urged Victorians to get behind a movement to have the work included in the Dominion-Provincial road programme.

Twenty-two miles remain to be built. At an estimate of $20,000 a mile the total cost would be $440,000, he said.

Mr. McDowell said the road should no longer be called the West Coast Road. If extended it would have to stop at Banfield anyway, and the route lay only along the southern fringe of the island in reality. A more appropriate name would be the "Sunset Highway."

A. M. Aitken, who will seek one of the Liberal nominations, also spoke to the meeting.

Letters To The Editor

ILL-TREATING A DOG

To the Editor:—According to the press, a well-known surgeon of Toronto has been prosecuted by the humane society of that city for gross ill-treatment of a dog and has paid a fine of $500 in preference to a jail sentence. Toronto is a hot-bed of vivisection. Vivisection does not promote humane feeling. Had this same act of cruelty, or a far worse one, been perpetrated in a vivisection laboratory under the guise of "scientific research" there would have been no prosecution. Humanity is strangely inconsistent in its attitude!

DORA KITTO, Hon. Secretary,
Canadian Anti-vivisection Society, 315 Sayward Building.

STRAFING HEALTH INSURANCE

To the Editor:—The main contention against health insurance appears to surround the question of whether all wage-earners, irrespective of earning capacity, should have become involved. This view should not influence those to whom the services were to become available, and undoubtedly in time the whole working adult population will become subscribers to who eventually must prove the most valuable piece of legislation ever to be introduced, and the public will be relieved of one of its greatest burdens and enjoy not only better health mentally and physically, but freedom from financial stress during periods when one is least able to foot the bill.

The doctor has, for the time being, immersed these good intentions in cold water. His benevolent and charitably inclined characteristics, of which we used to hear so much, have been submerged beneath a demand for higher pay, and have for the moment resulted in a checkered career for health insurance. But only temporarily.

A labor journal was very emphatic in its denunciation of the doctor for refusing to contract with the people for medical service; and the people, having placed the doctor upon a pedestal, are beginning to wonder after all, whether the doctor did not expect too much remuneration for services rendered to the sick and helpless, who, while unable to pay the heavy costs entailed during unpredictable illness in the family, could and would be willing to pay a small but adequate amount monthly to provide medical service. My first house furnishings were purchased this way, or the house might still be empty!

When, as one writer pointed out, a mere handful of medical men frustrated the effectiveness of a measure affecting several hundred thousands of our people, we think seriously of a "dictatorship" and the big stick. The doctor has thrown a boomerang into a public health measure. It may return unexpectedly, and with force.

COMMUNISTIC SUSPICION

To the Editor:—It has been asserted in your correspondence columns that the members of the longshoremen's unions who were on strike in 1935 are implicated in a conspiracy to start a revolution.

Are those who make this accusation prepared to prove its truth? Will they explain why the federal government remains quiescent in face of such a threat?

According to one statement, the men in question intend "to promote a Soviet state of B.C., Washington and California." The fact that Oregon, lying as it does between Washington and California, would cut such a state in two appears to have been overlooked when this accusation was launched; an unfortunate oversight, as it would have been just as easy to include it as to omit it.

These and similar stories were, a few months ago, being broadcast to a long-suffering public by Tom McInnes, who obtained his "facts" from the Citizens' League of Vancouver.

(Mr. McInnes is once more on the air, this time under the sponsorship of the "National League." At the time his previous series of broadcasts were so suddenly put to an end he was sponsored by the "National Party of Canada." If my memory is not at fault, he is now urging the re-election of the Liberal government. What has Mr. Pattullo done to deserve Mr. McInnes's support?)

Even if this accusation were true, it is clear that men capable of engaging in such a fantastic enterprise could by no possibility be a danger to the institutions of either the United States or Canada. They would need psychiatric rather than penal treatment.

It is impossible to hold progressive views today without being accused of Communism. Witness the ridiculous campaign against President Roosevelt. And now American reactionaries are asserting that the child labor amendment originated in Moscow! And the Fellowship for a Christian Social Order (of Canada) has also been accused of Communism. (This accusation was dealt with very neatly by its president in your correspondence columns recently.)

And you, sir, need not flatter yourself that you are above suspicion. Your attitude on the war in Spain is "viewed with alarm" in the best produced Fascist circles in Victoria, as at least two letters in your columns some time ago prove abundantly.

I fear that even the Tory government of Great Britain will be long fall under suspicion. Its policy with regard to the Spanish situation has betrayed some symptoms of sanity of late.

MISSOURIAN.

POLITICAL CONTROL TRACED BACK TO BANKERS

To the Editor:—If you really want to "attack the germ" of economic stagnation (note your editorial) you must first find the "cause," of which tariffs are but symptoms.

Is not all such legislation designed to achieve a monetary result? The control therefore of policy is resident, not in administration, but in finance. Anselm Rothschild was quite frank: "Permit me to issue and control the money of a nation and I care not who makes its laws."

It is not then sufficient, as G. K. C. said, to look to a political party or even to its banker, but to the banker of the banker to find where policy is dictated. Bankers as individuals are not, in the main, actuated by anti-social feelings but the system is such that they cannot help the result.

There is little of our legislation which is not thwarted or abetted by financial consideration, regardless of actual needs and our ability to satisfy them. At present money is the master, not the servant of man, and a hard task master it is proving.

The recommendations of the Macmillan committee and the pious statement of Ramsay MacDonald for more international co-operation which you quote, have proved valueless, for, as Gladstone said, "The state was in a position of subservience which became the interest of the bank and city to prolong."

Our government, really our servant, has become a first-class debt collecting agency for the banks, and in our effort to make the world safe for democracy, we have made it safe for the banking system against the interest of the mass of the people.

In a true democracy government exists with the will of the people and unless people insist on a policy and demand results they will continue to be exploited.

B.C. Guides Had Active
Year

Provincial Reports Presented In Vancouver Today

Character-building is the keynote of Guide training and at the annual meeting of the provincial council of the Canadian Girl Guides Association, which opened in Vancouver this morning, this note was emphasized in the many excellent reports and addresses given.

Mrs. Alan Morkill, who last month completed ten years' service as provincial commissioner, in her annual address tendered her grateful thanks for the unfailing trust and loyal cooperation she had received throughout all these years. Mrs. Morkill recalled Lady Baden-Powell's fine tribute to the B.C. council, Guides and Brownies, and continued:

"Every year hundreds of children pass out of our ranks and others enter them. With that, every Brownie would become a Guide, and every Guide a Ranger, it would strengthen our movement so enormously; and even more I wish that those of them who have time would ultimately become Guides. Perhaps this appeal will reach some sympathetic ears and enable us to extend our work."

ISLAND DIVISION

In her report as acting divisional commissioner for South Vancouver Island, Mrs. Morkill said in part:

"The division has had a very successful year, in spite of some great handicaps. Especial credit is due to the captains and brown owls for the way in which they carried on, as two of the district commissioners were prevented by prolonged illness from taking an active part, and the acting divisional commissioner was absent for three months. In addition, there was much illness among the children.
"Good turns by Rangers, Guides and Brownies were many and varied.
They made scrapbooks and renovated and dressed dolls for the Scout toy-shop, helped the Friendly Welfare Association to collect china and linen, provided hampers for needy families, sent games to the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium, collected tinned goods for hampers, gave a party to children who would otherwise have had no
Christmas treat, for three weeks provided relays of Guides at the showing of Titania's Palace, and made a regular contribution to the B.C. Lone Guides."

NEW ASSOCIATIONS

Mrs. M. G. Sills, provincial secretary, noted the formation of new local associations at Stewart, Osoyoos, Gibson's Landing and Colquitz, and a pack started at Premier in the north.
Four other packs, 5 Guide companies,
5 Ranger companies and a Lone Guiders' circle have been registered during the year, but 4 local associations, 11 companies, 10 packs and a Ranger company have been cancelled.

"At the time when the annual reports were sent in our total membership was 4,836, which was 33 more than last year, thanks to the increase in the number of Brownies and Lones.
This was much better than the previous year, when there was a decrease of 500," she concluded.
In her report as provincial com-adviser, Miss Hilda Leighton noted the number of Guide camps as 21;

Ranger camps, 2; district camps, 3; total number of campers, 838. Also 121 Rangers and Guides took part in twelve week-end camps, most of which took place at Easter, though the 16th Vancouver had a Christmas week-end. South Saanich divided their forces, holding a week-end for the younger Guides, on an uninhabited island, and then the older Guides motored to Courtenay, 170 miles, and hiked to the Forbidden
Plateau, carrying their packs.
Miss Leighton thanked "the following hard-working divisional camp advisers: Miss Dawson Thomas, Cowichan; Mrs. Mary Robby, Central Island; Mrs. E. K. Lord, Trail; Viscountess Colville, South Saanich, and the Vancouver camp committee, which does an enormous amount of excellent work."

MARCH—GUEST

The marriage took place quietly yesterday evening at the Esquimalt Road home of the officiating minister, Rev. J. S. Patterson, of Thelma, daughter of Mr. F. E. Guest of Bamberton, and Albert March, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. March of 474 Crittall Street, Esquimalt. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attractive in a grey flannel swagger suit, with navy blue accessories, and was attended by Mrs. R. Ricketts and Mrs. Sidney Smith. Mr. Sidney Smith was the best man. Following the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

ACKERMAN—LIDGATE
At St. Alban's Church last night at 8.30 o'clock, Rev. J. A. E. Bastin united in marriage Lillian Edith, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. P.
Lidgate, 620 Dunedin Street, to Mr.
Frederick Walter Ackerman, second son of Mrs. C. C. Ackerman, 1326
Stanley Avenue, and the late Mr.
Ackerman.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and she wore a navy blue tailored suit with white satin blouse and navy blue hat, shoes and gloves. Her corsage bouquet was of

A Service of Love

EVERY mother dreams of her baby's future. What her baby becomes depends very largely upon that service of love which is even more important than the tiny garments so carefully chosen. So do all you can to be sure before your baby arrives that you will be able to feed the precious little one yourself.

When the expectant mother takes Ovaltine regularly in those all-important weeks before the baby is born, the mother's milk is more likely to be plentiful and rich. Ovaltine should be taken throughout the nursing period, and long after that for the sake of the mother's own health and strength. In milk, hot or cold, it is delicious!

Columbia Board Hear Talk On Malay Peoples

Rev. G. R. V. Bolster was the speaker at the afternoon session of the monthly board meeting of Columbia Diocesan W.A. yesterday held in St. Mary's Hall. He spoke of his experiences in Malay, where his work as a police commissioner gave him unusual opportunities for observing the different nationalities there, and he paid high tribute to the native Malay people and to the Chinese, both workers and those of wealth. He was once the honored guest at the village of one of the nomad tribes, the Sakai, and described some of their strange customs. The natives of Malay are very deliberate, have kept their poles and refuse to be swept away by any modernism that is thrust upon them, Mr. Bolster said.

In the morning at 10.30, Canon A. E. de L. Nunna, assisted by Rev. H. St. J. Payne, celebrated Holy Communion in St. Mary's, at which there was a large attendance.

The board was welcomed to St. Mary's by Mrs. Ditcham, and a silent tribute was paid to Mrs. Coppinger, a late member of St. Mary's evening branch. Mrs. Pickles of Denman Island was welcomed. Miss Lydia Sill presided at this, the first board meeting since her appointment as president, and welcomed to the executive three additional officers, viz., Miss Nicholls, second vice-president; Mrs. Venables, social service secretary, and Miss Checkley, who is continuing as junior superintendent.

Mrs. Pinhorn gave a report of the hospitality committee for the annual meetings held in March. The treasurer's report showed money in hand for the work of the W.A.

Announcement was made that Mrs. Wodehouse, the Dominion president, had been appointed one of four (which includes the primate of Canada) to go to London to confer with the S.P.G. on the work done from there for the Canadian churches. Mrs. Wodehouse was presented with a Dominion life membership from the branches of Canada before her departure for England.

During the morning reports were given by each of the following departments: Dorcas, Educational, Social Service, Little Helpers, Columbia Coast Mission, Prayer Partner and Embroidery Guild, and from the latter Mrs. T. J. Greenway presented the board with two embroidered alms bags.

In the afternoon Mrs. Frow reported on the girls' work. The Junior Girls' annual meeting has had to be postponed, but Miss Checkley hopes to organize a rally in September, also a garden party on July 21, details of which will be given later. The doll-dressing competition is hoped to be completed in time for the September rally. Miss Gwynne reported for the extra cents fund and Miss Mott for the Living Message.

Mrs. Parmiter of St. Mark's extended a hearty vote of thanks to the branches of St. Mary's for their hospitality.

Mrs. Carpenter took charge of tea tickets. Mrs. J. Knight convened the tea, assisted by Mrs. Gaynor, Mrs. Chamberlain and Mrs. McGregor. Vera Knight, Mary McGregor and Eileen Gardner assisted in serving.

To facilitate the arrangement of the various entries to the best advantage, the committee urges all intending competitors to submit their entry as soon as possible. The wide variety of the classes offers wide scope for artistry, originality and ingenuity, and the resultant collection promises to be a beautiful spectacle.

The affair is being heralded by a series of striking posters, the artistic handwork of pupils of Mrs. I. Uthoff. Entries for the table display may be made to Mrs. H. V. Bartholomew, Mrs. E. G. Maynard, Mrs. James Bland, Miss Mabel Cameron or Miss E. M. Macrae.

Lake Hill Tea
Proved Success

The daffodil tea and exhibition of arts and crafts held Wednesday by the Lake Hill Women's Institute was an attractively arranged affair. Mrs. C. H. Porter and Mrs. Carpenter, as general conveners, were responsible for the beautiful decorations which consisted of masses of daffodils, each tea table being gay with the spring flowers. Mrs. Jaffray, assisted by Mrs. Holland and Mrs. Glover, poured tea. Mrs. Myle's antique stall, which contained some very valuable heirlooms, including a beautiful vase, a gift from Queen Victoria to a local family, attracted much attention, and pieces from China, Persia, Egypt and the Old Land were greatly admired.

The Quebec exhibit of handicraft, loaned by the Minister of Agriculture, was also a great attraction to the visitors.

Local crafts and demonstrations of spinning, weaving, raffia work, leather work and glove making added to the afternoon entertainment. The home-cooking stall was under the convener-ship of Mrs. Currie, and quite early depleted of its delicacies.

Amid the cheers of 250,000 persons, Pope Pius XI made the first public appearance since the four-month illness that had confined him to the Vatican when he presided at Easter mass in St. Peter's Cathedral, Rome. Pictured in the scene in the packed church looking toward the altar and papal throne at the head of the Roman Catholic Church took part in the services.

YOUNGBAND TO GIVE CONCERT

Rowles' Boys' Group Will Play Next Wednesday in C.C.F. Hall

Next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock Rowles' Boys' Band will present a band concert in the C.C.F. Hall, Fort Street. Admission will be free to the public and all friends of the band and former members are invited to attend. A programme of pleasing variety and entertainment has been planned.

Wednesday's concert will mark the fifteenth anniversary of the inception of the band by Charles Rowles. The organization originally started with three boys and grew into an orchestra of thirty. This orchestra enjoyed many engagements in the city and also out of town. In 1930, through the generosity of a friend, the band instruments, formerly used by the Sea Cadets, were taken over, and the band as it now exists was really started. Although hampered by lack of funds the band has, since 1930 met with continued success and is now at a point in its career where it has received general public favor.

Members of the band all started as beginners and have advanced under the supervision of their director, Mr. Rowles. Other boys are coming up from junior classes ready to replace older boys as they advance to the military and other bands of the city. The boys are supplied with instruments while learning and also when they become members of the band.

It is hoped that many friends of the band will attend the concert, which will be in the nature of a reunion. Any former members who would like to take part in the programme are invited to get in touch with Mr. Rowles.

The ratepayers of Nanaimo will be called upon in the near future to vote aye or no to a by-law authorizing the borrowing of a sum of money not exceeding $50,000 for the laying of an eighteen-inch steel water main from No. 1 reservoir to the city limits and to improve the distribution system within the city.

The annual Easter vestry meeting of Christ Church Cathedral was held in the schoolroom yesterday evening. Bishop Roper presiding. Several reports were submitted, the first being that of Arthur Crease, who reported for the committee appointed to look into the matter of the encroachment of the city on the Cathedral property.

ARGENTINE NAZI SLAIN

Buenos Aires, April 17 (Canadian Press from Havas).—Joseph Riedel, forty, chief of the Nazi organization in Argentina, was slain last Sunday night in what was reported to have been a squabble with fellow Nazis over use of party funds, it was disclosed here yesterday.

Tim Brady asked for heavy damages, $10,000, but the jury allowed him "only" $2,500.

The court said: "We do not see that this case can be distinguished from those involving the like use of a photograph of a living person, and, of course, this has been held actionable for many years. The most tender affections of the human heart cluster about the remains of one's dead child. These parents have not only been made to suffer, but they have been caused much unwanted publicity and great humiliation."

The court also held that the photographer Otto Lenz, was not justified in striking off copies from the negative for his own use, and that he went too far when he sold them to the medical magazine for purposes of publicity. In fact, he had agreed to make only twelve prints and destroy the negative. That was a contract, a verbal contract, and he broke it.

This is a true case. Proof or citation may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Bela Lanan—Court Reporter."

Trapeze Acts Are Mechanical

"Never Stop to Think What We Are Doing," Says Olympian Trio Showing Here

Three boys who grew up together and decided as lads of twelve and thirteen years of age that they were headed for life under the "big top" are appearing here this week at the Willows with Polack Brothers' Circus.

They are Donald Hammond, twenty-five; Rellian Johnson, twenty-three, and Robert Owen, twenty-three, members of "The Olympians," trapeze and parallel bar artists, whose daring feats at the Horse Show Building have thrilled spectators at the circus all this week.

Don, Rellian and "Buss" are among the members of the circus troupe who travel around in a trailer and make their home next door to any building in which the circus is billed to perform.

In the comforts of their neatly fitted traveling home yesterday they told the Times reporter how they had grown up together since grammar school days perfecting the finer arts on the flying trapeze under the guidance of an old-time "trap" artist who took them under his wing.

WATCHED SHOW DAILY

The old artist's interest in the lads grew out of their daily attendance at exhibitions he used to give in Long Beach, California, and finally he consented to train and manage them.

For five years they traveled with him, joining various road shows and appearing in vaudeville and all other types of public performances. When they had completed their contract with him the boys decided to start out on their own and their first appearance independently was with Polack Brothers' circus five years ago.

Since that time they have traveled mostly with the Polack Brothers and at times on vaudeville circuits.

"What is the hardest part of act?" repeated Don Hammond in answer to the question. "Well, the parallel bar work is the toughest. The 'trap' work comes to you naturally after you have perfected it and every thing goes along mechanically. About the only time we have any grief is when one of us really starts thinking about what comes next in the act and then there is sure to be a slip."

MISSED CATCH HERE

This, however, was not quite the reason why the trio "missed a trick" (10 a.m.) at the Armories.

When Rellian Johnson, who does the catches, missed a catch, Johnson explained the glare of the light had caught his eyes while he was hanging upside down and for the moment—just as one of his partners was flying through the air towards him—he could see nothing but a haze.

"Yes," added Johnson with a slight touch of pride, "but it was the first catch I had missed in four months."

None of the trio has ever had a serious injury. They have suffered minor ailments as a result of bouncing out of the safety net.

They do not smoke or drink. This was not by agreement but none of them developed the habit.

They take no particular pains about keeping in good physical condition. "Our act takes care of that," said Don Hammond.

They do have to exercise care in eating times, however. This is particularly true of their evening meal, which they have about 4 or 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon. This safeguards against any attacks of cramps during the act.

The three have covered practically all of United States and western Canada on tour and thoroughly enjoy traveling. They have no immediate change decided upon for their future, "but why plan for that," says Don Hammond with a smile, "Rellian may drop one of us tomorrow and the act would be all over."

Orderly sergeant, Cpl. Massey; next for duty, Sgt. Lowe.

Both companies will parade at the Armories, Bay Street, on April 20 at 20.00 hours. Dress, drill order.

As details of the proposed Vancouver trip will be completed at this parade, those absent will be automatically excluded from participating.

Orderly officer will act as range officer. Vacancies exist for a few recruits in both companies.

Sports Mirror

By PETE SALLAWAY

CHAMPIONS in the true sense of the word, that is the best way in which to pay compliment to the Detroit Red Wings, who, on Thursday night, won their second successive world professional hockey championship and with it the Stanley Cup. One might call the Red Wings the "World Champions of Cripples" and not get away from the truth. Just stop and figure. When Jack Adams' squad whipped Lester Patrick's Rangers in the fifth and final battle four regulars, goalie Normie Smith, defencemen Orville Roelston and Doug Young and winger Larry Aurie were sitting on the bench, forced out of action through injuries. In addition Eddie Goodfellow, star rearguard, did not play after the first period owing to an injured leg, and Pete Kelly's effectiveness was hampered by a leg injury.

When a club can go through a world championship play-off with four of its first-string players hors de combat then it deserves to be called a great hockey machine. Jack Adams, manager of the Detroiters, is famed for being able to inject a fighting spirit into his players that makes them rise to great heights. He certainly proved it Thursday night. And don't forget that the Red Wings also won the championship the hard way. On two occasions they were a game down, only to fight back each time and tie it all up again.

The defeat was a tough one for Lester Patrick to swallow after getting his team of rookies and veterans so far. But the "Silver Fox" must be complimented on the wonderful coaching his boys made. The Rangers' success was far beyond even Lester's expectations. Many figured he would be lucky to make the play-offs, much less the final. Patrick has the backbone of a great club for next season, and with another fine forward line composed of Brian Hewitt, Clint Smith and Bobby Kirk coming up from the Philadelphia Ramblers, farm club, the New York mentor should take his club places.

Thursday's final had special interest for Victorians. A goal for Detroit was a youngster, Earl Robertson, who performed at the Willows Arena for one season in the uniform of the Victoria Cubs. "Robbie," as he is popularly known, covered himself with glory and, on his exhibition, probably won himself a major league berth for next season. One of the referees for the deciding game was none other than Mickey Ion, who for years held sway in the Pacific Coast League.

Charles E. Chapman, Orinda, Cal., a Pacific Coast scout for Detroit was a youngster, Earl Robertson, who performed at the Willows Arena for one season in the uniform of the Victoria Cubs. "Robbie," as he is popularly known, covered himself with glory and, on his exhibition, probably won himself a major league berth for next season. One of the referees for the deciding game was none other than Mickey Ion, who for years held sway in the Pacific Coast League.

"On attack I have Dickey, DiMaggio, Selkirk, Greenberg, Gehring, Appling, Trosky, Averill, Fox, Ott, Medwick, Vaughan, P. Wanner, and on defence I included only DiMaggio, Gehring, Owen, White, Kuhel, Chapman, Rowe, Cramer, West, Moses, Whitehead, Joe Moore, Ott, Warneke, Durocher, Terry Moore, W. Herman, Juges, L. Wanner, Mungo, Stripp and Cooney. Three-point men were mighty good—players of the type of Goslin, Stone, Demaree, Camilli and Bonura on attack, for example. Two-point men were pretty fair, but short on either slugging or frequency in hitting on attack and with some defect or question mark on defence. One-pointers were presumably weak. The zero mark was given only to some pitchers on attack.

"If I consulted my prejudices, I would pick Detroit over the Yankees, Cincinnati for a spot in the first division and the National League over the American. But I cannot make it figure that way. Here is the way the totals come out:

"American: New York, 62; Detroit, 60; Cleveland, 53; Boston, 52; Washington, 51; Chicago, 47; St. Louis, 45; Philadelphia, 38, Total, 407.

"National: St. Louis, New York and Chicago, 54 each; Pittsburgh, 52; Cincinnati, 49; Brooklyn, 47; Boston, 42; Philadelphia, 40. Total, 385."

Rallies In Last Half to Defeat England 3 to 1

Comes From Behind 1 to 0 Deficit to Smash Through Invader's Defence
149,707 Attend Game at Glasgow

Hampden Park, Glasgow, April 17.—Behind 1 to 0 in the first half, Scotland smashed through England's defence in the final forty-five minutes to score three goals and win the last international football match of the year, 3 to 1. A record crowd of 149,707 watched the game.

Although he did not score, Tommy Walker, clever heart of Midlothian inside-forward, was the inspiration of Scotland's great recovery. He paved the way for the first and third goals, giving Frank O'Donnell, Preston North End and R. McPhail, Glasgow Rangers, with passes from which they scored brilliant goals. The veteran Ranger player got the second on a pass from O'Donnell. F. C. Steele gave England its half-time lead shortly before the interval.

A brisk breeze proved advantageous to the visitors in the first half, the greater portion of which was fought in Scottish territory. While the English attack dominated, Scotland's defence put up a great fight to keep the score sheet clean until five minutes before the cross-over. Positions were reversed in the final period when the Scots revealed something of their traditional wizardry. They attacked with classic combination that made the opposing defence look cumbersome. Walker proving irresistible. His cleverness was the outstanding feature of the game.

Intermittent rain during the last two days made the ground heavy and play was not up to international standard.

FIRST HALF

The home players attacked immediately and Woodley, in England's goal, saved. England retaliated but Brown, Glasgow Rangers' halfback, featured with clever positional play and his trickery twice held out the Englishman attacks.

Steele, unmarked on the edge of the penalty area, muffed a fine pass from the left, shooting over the bar. The strong wind proved of great assistance to the visitors who maintained play in the Thistles' half but their finishing was weak.

Scotland's backs were kept on by the English attack. Carter had a shot stopped by Brown with Dawson unplaced and then Simpson stopped Matthews.

Delaney finally dashed away on the right wing but O'Donnell headed his centre over the bar. England slowed down at this stage and then Simpson placed a free kick in the goal area. Spectators thought the ball would go outside but Delaney bobbed up to head the ball with Woodley. Barker kicked out an almost certain goal. A little later O'Donnell got the ball in the net and the referee signalled a goal but changed his decision after consulting a linesman. Scottish players appealed for a goal but a free kick was awarded.

A few minutes before half-time England's representatives exerted tremendous pressure and Steele beat Dawson with a vicious drive. From then until the interval Scotland was penned in its own half but the defence proved sound despite the gruelling attack.

Scotland settled down grimly on the resumption and it was not long before fine combination between Delaney and Walker resulted in the score being made level. The Hearts' player capped a grand dribble by passing to O'Donnell who beat Woodley.

The home team maintained the pressure, England's defenders being so hard pressed that they kicked widely to clear their lines. The Cheltenham goalies saved brilliantly from Walker who was showing his best form. Barker and Bray kept on his heels but frequently the inside right rounded them to send in well-placed centres.

Walker back-heeled audaciously to McPhail, who sent in a rapier-like shot. Woodley making another great save. The English custodian emerged triumphant from a bad ten minutes in which he was peppered with shots from all angles.

Males kicked away a drive by Duncan with Woodley unplaced. Twice the visitors made brief raids but hesitancy nullified their chances.

Ten minutes from time Walker started a movement which resulted in O'Donnell passing to McPhail. The latter's left-foot drive found the mark to give Scotland the lead. The irrepressible Walker banged a shot against the cross-bar and finally capped a great afternoon's work when he gave McPhail an opportunity to head in the Scots' third goal.

Charlton Out of Soccer Scramble

Drops From Race For English League Race When Held to Draw By Everton; Manchester City and Arsenal Both Victors

London, April 17.—Charlton Athletic dropped out of the English Football League championship race today when held to a 2 to 2 draw at Everton. Manchester City, probable champions, maintained its three-point margin over Arsenal by downing Preston North End 5 to 2. The Gunners, one point up on Charlton, blanked Portsmouth 4 to 0.

The Athletic has an inferior goal average to Manchester City and even if successful in drawing level on points when the season closes, May 1, must take second place.

At the other end of the table Manchester United improved its chances of avoiding relegation with a 2 to 1 victory over Middlesbrough at Old Trafford. Sheffield Wednesday, beaten 3 to 2 at home by West Bromwich Albion, remains in the cellar with twenty-eight points. Leeds United, beaten 3 to 0 by Wolverhampton Wanderers, is one point better off.

Blackpool and Leicester City are likely promotion candidates in the second division. The Senators won, 2 to 1, at Coventry to retain a two-point lead over Leicester, who smashed through to a 5 to 2 victory at Chesterfield.

Luton Town lost valuable ground in the race for the championship of the third division, southern section. The Town lost the only goal of the game at Gillingham and Notts County went into a four-point lead with a 2 to 0 verdict over Watford.

Lincoln City and Stockport County are battling for leadership of the northern section, with the City two points ahead. Today the former overcame Carlisle United 3 to 0 and Stockport blanked Crewe Alexandra 1 to 0.

CLIMAX FINE PIN SEASON

Members of Olympic Commercial Tenpin League Hold Wind-up

Another successful league bowling season was climaxed last night at the Olympic Bowling Alleys. More than fifty members of the Men's Commercial Tenpin League gathered at the alleys for the grand wind-up and presentation of trophies.

For more than three hours the tenpin alley on the main floor hummed to the tune of spinning balls and rebounded to the crash of spilling pins, as the members met in friendly matches for their last time together this season.

Everett Taylor, president of the Service Club Tenpin League, officiated at the presentation of prizes.

LEAGUE WINNERS

The Coast Hardware squad, skippered by Fred Goodman, was presented with the Phoenix Cup, symbolic of the league championship. West Fulton, Guy Morely, Nor. Parcell, Bert Pickup and Harry Woolston were other members of the winning team. Runner-up was the Shags, comprised of George Gurr (captain), Ernie Stocks, Ernie Harris, Percy Stewart, Jim Ferrie and Ed Adams. Each member received a prize.

Honors for the best average for the season and high three-game score went to Thomas Lambie, veteran pin-spinner. With a mark of 181, he received the J. D. Ferguson trophy for the former and a medal donated by the Coast Hardware for high three-game score, which was 700.

High for a single game, J. D. Ferguson received a medal presented by the alleys. His score was 268. There was a special prize awarded by an unknown member to the man bowling a score closest to 99. A veteran of the Northwestern team won the prize.

Clarence Johns, manager of the alleys, in a few words pointed out that the recent season was one of the most successful ever enjoyed. Fourteen teams without any defaults completed right through the season, he said.

CHALLENGE MATCH

On Monday night at 9 o'clock a challenge match will be staged between teams captained by Clarence Johns and George Gurr, to decide as to the speed of bowling on alleys with automatic pin setters as against hand setting.

Manager Johns announced last night he is organizing a mixed five-pin league which will open next Wednesday and continue on to the end of May. It will be open to all bowlers, with teams to be comprised of two women and three men. A summer tenpin league will also open next Wednesday.

Is Re-elected Archery Head

Prospects of a successful season and the re-election of Walter E. Adams, well-known figure in local archery circles, as president of the Victorian Archers, featured the annual meeting of the club held at his home on Beach Road yesterday evening.

T. Wherry was named vice-president and Freeman York was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Appointed as members of the executive committee were Mrs. F. York, F. Rose, L. Wherry and J. Pimm.

Discussed at the meeting were plans for the grand opening of the outdoor range at Reynolds Road on May 1. It was decided to hold a special shoot open to members and visitors. A bow donated by H. F. Woodley, California archer, will be presented to the highest scorer.

British Columbia Champions Smother Union Jacks 44 to 22 in First Game of Western Canada Basketball Finals; Windsor Walks Over McGill Grads

Canadian Press
Vancouver, April 17.—University of British Columbia's Thunderbirds contemplated today—aside from their exams—on entering their first Dominion final in five years. Not since 1931-32, when they won the national championship have the blue and gold collegians been in the Canadian final.

They defeated the powerful, but somewhat bewildered, Raymond Union Jacks from Alberta 44 to 22 in the first of a best-of-three game western Canada series here last night.

Ran Matthison, flashy guard of the "rah-rah" boys, and some of his teammates are writing exams today. After completion of the tests they will journey to the east-end Forum to meet the Alberta champions in the second game tonight.

The prairie quintette held Varsity in close check during the first half of the game, and on two occasions during the early minutes enjoyed a slight lead.

TOO MUCH POWER

Substitutes which the collegian coach, Maury Van Vleet, kept shoving into the game proved to have a distinct edge over the Alberta second-stringers, and finally started to draw away near the end of the first half.

The British Columbian reserve power was demonstrated again after the turnover as they scored twenty-four points against the willing Jacks seven.

Raymond opened the scoring less than a minute after the tip-off, when Sam Fairbanks sent a free throw, but Varsity made it 5 to 1 with five free shots, Henderson and Willoughby getting two each and Jimmy Bardsley the other.

Fairbanks and Dean Rolston bagged two field goals apiece to put the Jacks into a 9 to 7 lead after Henderson had added a field goal for Varsity. George Pringle, Varsity guard, evened the score at 9 to 9 at the ten-minute mark. Don Nilsson gave the Albertans an 11 to 9 lead. A minute later a free throw by Willoughby and baskets by Bill Swan and Bardsley gave the collegians the lead for the second time at 14 to 11.

Sam Fairbanks and Bardsley alternated on the new free baskets. Sam Matthison sank another basket just before the first time out to make the score 18 to 13 for Varsity.

A long shot by Paul Fairbanks and a field goal by Matthison ended the scoring for the first half and the teams left the floor with the British Columbian leading 20 to 15.

SECOND HALF

Ken Hague replaced Paul Fairbanks for Raymond as play resumed, and Varsity, in a spirited rally, ran the score to 15 to 15, with tight and one-half minutes of the second half gone.

Dean Rolston went off on personal fouls at the ten-minute mark and was replaced by Butler Nalder. Sam Fairbanks scored the first Raymond point of the half, but Matthison and Swan came back with field goals for Varsity against a free shot by Sam Fairbanks to bring the score to 34 to 17 with eight minutes to go.

Willoughby sank another basket for Varsity before Frank Turner replaced him and Paul Fairbanks was put in for Van Orman with six minutes left.

Paul Fairbanks made the score 36 to 19 and repeated one minute later to give the Albertans twenty-one points.

Bill Swan raised Varsity's total to 38. Matthison made it 42 with two more field goals before Armstrong replaced Henderson and immediately scored the final Varsity point.

Sam Fairbanks scored for Raymond on a technical foul just before the whistle to end the scoring.

WINDSOR WINS EASILY

Windsor, Ont., April 17.—Victims of Windsor Ford's high-geared forces, a stunned Montreal McGill Grade basketball team held a meeting today to decide the best way to combat the Canadian champion near-perfect form. Unless Grade perfect a method in a hurry, the best-of-three series for the eastern Canada senior title will be over tonight.

Flashing speed and brilliance, the McGill crew had never seen before, Ford had little difficulty in running up a 57 to 17 win in the first tilt of the series last night. Ford's Canadian Olympic representatives last year, were highly favored to repeat the bitter dose to Montreal hopes in the second match.

The highly-rated pair of Johnny Ferraro and Ole Olsen was effectively throttled by Ford last night. Olsen was held scoreless while Ferraro managed to score but six points. Both looked slow in comparison to the pesterous Windsor little men.

The only time the teams were evenly matched was in the first five minutes of play, when the visitors forged to the front by a point or two.

Sudbury Tigers Canadian Hockey Champs

Three Goals In Last Frame Beat North Battleford

Beavers Out On Top Twice

Canadian Press

Calgary, April 17.—Victors in a hockey series that went the limit in thrills and games, Sudbury Tigers licked battle scars today and purred possessively over the Allan Cup.

The eastern Canada champions retrieved the trophy from the west by stopping the amazing comeback of North Battleford Beavers with a convincing 5 to 2 triumph here last night in the fifth and deciding game of the series.

In a game that lacked the fire of previous battles between the two teams, the crafty Tigers came from behind twice, pounced on a third-period break and then tore Beavers to pieces with bare claws in a savage finish.

After battering Beavers in the first two encounters, the nickel belt champions faltered before desperate North Battleford rallies in the next two that deadlocked the series.

Their protest over Beavers win in the fourth game dissuaded the miners had to win last night's game if they were to take Canada's senior hockey crown to Sudbury for the first time.

WAITED FOR BREAK

They played cautiously, waiting for a break, and when it came Tigers struck quickly and then ran wild. Tigers will leave Calgary tomorrow night for Toronto where they will battle for the world's championship.

Centre George Hestie, an opportunist and a great playmaker, kept Sudbury in contention with perfect passes that brought goals, made the play for the winning tally and then topped his performance with a magnificent marker that made victory certain.

The slight pivot slipped a pass to Jules Cholette in the first period after Vic Myles had given North Battleford the lead. In the second he placed the puck for Jimmy Dewey to score following Cam Burke's counter for Beavers.

More than eleven minutes of the final session had elapsed when Hestie made the move that really decided the game. Rushing down the left side, he found himself almost parallel with the goal line and the goal path blocked. He flashed the puck to Farmer Chamberlain, who rifled the puck into the Beaver goal before Netminder Ken Davis could move. Chamberlain's scorching drive from about twenty-five feet out had Davis beaten all the way.

Down for the first time in the game, the Saskatchewan champions set out to duplicate their third-period rallies that brought victories in the third and fourth games but an unexpected penalty disrupted their drive and they never had a chance after that to overtake Tigers.

Although Sudbury failed to score while Myles was rested in the penalty box for two valuable minutes, North Battleford were through when he returned. The big defenceman had been waved off for kicking Hestie's dropped stick as the little dark-haired centre bent to grab it.

At full strength again the tired Beavers were left flatfooted in a gangling act when Mel Hill broke away. Hill passed to Don Grosso inside the blue line and Grosso beat Davis with a flip shot from ten feet out that caught the inside corner.

The Beaver brigade fought back but their disorganized sorties were futile and they went hopelessly behind when Hestie broke up an attack at their blue line with one minute to play, raced in alone on Davis and scored on a brilliant play.

ANGLING

By ROY THORSEN
The British Columbia Game Department has begun its fish propagation work for the year and by the end of the month will have planted 320,000 yearling steelhead and Kamloops trout in British Columbia. Fifty-eight thousand will be planted in lakes, rivers and streams on the south end of the island.

The liberations in southern lakes and rivers are: Kamloops trout—The Lake, 5,000; Wolf Lake, 2,000; Deer Lake, 1,000, and Shawanigan Lake, 10,000. Steelhead trout—Demanuel Creek, tributary of Sooke River, 5,000; Sooke River, 10,000, and Cowichan River, 25,000. The total number of fish to be planted constitutes the number of trout hatched in 1936.

Roger Monteith in addressing a meeting of the Capital City Commercial Club last week quoted interesting figures he had secured from the game commissioner regarding liberations of various species of trout in British Columbia during the last three years, and also the amount collected for sport fishing licenses.

The department, Monteith said, has made the following liberations during the period mentioned:

Species:	1934	1935	1936
Cutthroat	15,000	15,000	15,000
Brown	37,575	53,821	44,793
Kamloops	238,250	177,643	147,794
Steelhead	28,425	50,280	50,513
Total	309,250	346,724	247,970

Monteith pointed out that these figures do not include the plantings made by game associations and clubs granted a subsidy each year for the purpose of carrying on their fish culture operations.

The amount received from the sale of resident and non-resident anglers' licenses during the three years, follows:

	1934	1935	1936
Non-resident	$1,191.00	$1,225.00	$1,225.00
Resident	$7,716.00	$8,535.00	$8,535.00
Total	$8,907.00	$9,760.00	$9,760.00

A point of interest in the above figures is the increase in the sale of licenses, both resident and non-resident in 1936—a total of $26,928—and the decrease in fish plantings.

The last week has been a poor one for members of the trout-angling fraternity. The deluge of rain at up-lake points has put a "crimp" in river fishing for a few days at least, as the flows are well flooded, the Cowichan River being up two feet.

"Battle Royal" On This Evening

Six of the leading heavyweights in the wrestling game will be on hand this evening to provide the action on the show at the Tillamook gym. The programme will open with a "battle royal," with the following entering the ring to participate in the mad scramble: "Red Shadow," Earl McCready, prairie matman; Paul "Bombshell" Boesch and Herbie Freeman, New York; Chief Thunderbird, Sanich Indian, and Steve Strehel, Hollywood. The manner in which the wrestlers are eliminated will decide how they will appear in the following three bouts. The card is billed to start at 8:30 o'clock.

Rising water is detrimental to river fishing for the water gets muddy and fish can't see the lures. The rushing water generally brings plenty of ground feed for them.

The best bet for trout anglers this week-end is lake fishing, with Shawanigan holding the spotlight. Prospect Lake is reported to be producing some good fish. One angler hit town the other day and said one of the best rises he has seen in that lake for some time occurred last week-end. He reported they are rising around the Little Bar, near the island.

Fishing activities at Brentwood this week have been at a standstill. Winds have been the drawback, making the waters far too rough for the boats. However, for the last two days sea-gulls have been bounding the large schools of herring in the inlet—and where there are herring there are generally salmon. The springs should be taking if weather conditions are right tomorrow.

The second button winner of the current season is E. James. He landed a twenty-one and a half pound fish at Brentwood last Sunday, and will receive a bronze button from the Victoria-Sanich Inlet Anglers' Association.

It might interest some anglers to learn that the 1937 amendments to the Fisheries Act announce that: "In that portion of Mill Stream, lying between Shawanigan Lake and Little Shawanigan, no one shall fish for, catch or kill fish of any kind."

Florida is again attempting to make a big crop of long-staple sea island cotton, hoping that the old enemy, the boll weevil, can be kept down.

Automobiles in this country last year were rated the largest users of steel, rubber, plate glass, nickel, lead, gasoline and lubricating oil.

NANAIMO WINS HOOP HONORS

Redettes Defeat Creston Girls 49 to 31 For British Columbia Championship

Canadian Press
Nanaimo, April 17.—The name of Nanaimo Redettes went into the records today as winners of the British Columbia women's senior B basketball title while a beaten Creston sextette headed back to the interior town with a threat to return next year.

The flashy Nanaimo squad, which won the island championship a few weeks ago, completely outclassed Creston in almost every period here last night to win the sudden-death final for the title 49 to 31. The island champions led 32 to 15 at half time.

Showing signs of a long motor trip from Creston to Vancouver, the interior girls found themselves out-weighted and out-muscled by Redettes, who broke up Creston's fast-breaking plays before they could near the hoop.

Ethel Watson scored a free throw to give Nanaimo the lead from the tipoff, and from then on the islanders were never headed. A few minutes later they led 8 to 7, then the count went to 16 to 11 for Nanaimo.

SECOND HALF

Scoring almost four points to every one for Creston in the second half, Nanaimo ran up a 31 to 15 lead and scored another point to lead 32 to 19 at the half time mark.

Redettes, who play without guidance of a coach or manager, started the third quarter without their first string front line and the Creston girls outscored the islanders for the first time 4 to 3.

Creston staged a spirited rally in the final quarter, running the score to 37 to 25 for Nanaimo before the islanders came back with field goals and converted foul shots to increase their margin again.

Norma Payne, Creston guard, took scoring honors with sixteen points, while Daley Behan sank fifteen for Nanaimo, and J. Guinness had twelve.

BOXING

Chicago—Larry Greb, 134, Milwaukee, outpointed Frankie Terranova, 131, New York (10).

San Francisco—Marty Simmons, 168, Saginaw, Mich., outpointed Angelo Puglisi, 164, New York City (10).

Normal Schools Divide Fixtures

Victoria and Vancouver Normal Schools split the opening games of their intercity basketball series at the Memorial Hall yesterday, the local girls dropping a 36 to 21 decision, while the Capital City men turned in a 32 to 21 victory.

The Victoria girls, playing their usual good game, were unable to cope with the efficient tactics of their opponents. High scorers for Vancouver were J. McCall and E. McEwen. Annie Walker took scoring honors for the locals, chalking up seventeen points.

The Victoria Pedagogues prevented a double victory for Vancouver by turning in one of their best performances to defeat the Vancouverites 32 to 21. The speedy plays of the Pedagogues enabled them to maintain a progressive lead over the Vancouver team. G. Donaldson was Victoria's high scorer.

Teams and scores follow:

GIRLS

Vancouver—J. McCall 16, E. Lynn 2, V. Phipps, E. McCaven 14, L. Simpson 4, D. Tolland and N. Raine.
Victoria—J. Paynter 4, A. Walker 13, M. White, E. Watchorn, K. Manson, W. Milne and B. Bowman.

English Cricketers Will Play In City

M.C.C. Team to Meet Victoria Eleven in Exhibition Late in August; Schedule for Visitors Announced

Toronto, April 17.—Plans have been completed for extension of the English cricket team's Canadian tour this summer to include matches on the Pacific Coast. Announced today by R. W. Sharp, secretary of the Dominion Cricket Advisory Board, matches have been arranged for Vancouver and Victoria late in August.

The decision marks an important step in development of cricket in the Dominion. In five weeks the Marybone Cricket Club team, captained by Hon. C. J. Lyttleton, Worcestershire, will travel from Montreal to Victoria and back. Itineraries of previous seasons sponsored by the M.C.C. have been confined mainly to eastern Canada.

SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

Arriving at Montreal July 31, the English cricketers will play their first match in Toronto August 2, subsequent games being scheduled for St. Catharines and Waterloo, Ont.; Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria. Returning, the team will meet Toronto and Ottawa eleven and close its tour in Montreal, sailing for England September 3.

To date only one match against a representative Canadian team has been decided on. In Toronto, August 6 and 7, the tourists will oppose Hon. R. C. Matthews's team that made a splendid showing in England last summer.

Mr. Matthews now is in England where he will confer with M.C.C. officials regarding the tour. It is expected the personnel of the visiting team will be announced shortly.

Rex Carey Wins Fight Decision

Seattle, April 17.—Rex Carey, Victoria middleweight boxer and present British Columbia champion, added another victory to his impressive Seattle record Thursday evening when he won the nod over Earl Cooper, veteran Tacoma belter, in the main event at the Washington Athletic Club. Carey had the better of the scrap all of the way and punched out a clean-cut and popular victory.

Jimmy Foxx In Hospital

Associated Press
Philadelphia, April 17.—Jimmy Foxx, slugging first baseman for Boston Red Sox, was sent to hospital yesterday with a sinus infection. Doctors said he would be out of the lineup for the opening day game next Tuesday against the Athletics in Philadelphia but did not think an operation would be necessary.

TOMMY FARR GETS PRAISE

Britons Really Excited Over Latest Ring Hero; Gets Several Offers

London, April 17.—The British Isles were pretty excited today about Tommy Farr, the twenty-three-year-old Welsh wallower who knocked out Max Baer's head. He had "struck a blow for British boxing" before a swanky crowd of 14,000 at Harringay Arena Thursday night by trimming playboy Maxie—who was perfectly fit, but, as always, could not box a lick.

Late last night, as cabled offers from American promoters began arriving, every Welshman with good lungs was still singing "Land of My Fathers," and Englishmen were ac-cording perfect strangers to ask if they had heard the news.

By stepping in and slapping Baer out of shape to win a top-sided twelve-round decision, young Farr climaxed a ring career that began when he gave up the idea of remaining a kitchen hand in his native Tonypandil, Wales. At the same time, if you take Baer's word for it, the curly-haired Californian is convinced he's all washed up in the punching business.

Pure-blood Indians in the United States are no longer a vanishing race, but are increasing.

Let Fuel Saving Pay for Remodelling

Heat that escapes through side walls and roof is money wasted—but it is something that modern improvements in home construction can easily remedy. Begin with the roof. Lay Duroid Mineral Surfaced Shingles right over the old roof and you have the heat-retaining protection of double insulation. You also save on fire insurance premiums because a Duroid Roof is fire-resistant and calls for a lower insurance rate. In addition to this Duroid Roof colors are permanent because the surfacing is natural crushed slate that never changes color.

Insulate From Cold and Protect From Fire

Next to the roof, the other most important thief of coal dollars is the side walls. Cover all four sides with Fibre Rock Fireproof Insulation and apply a coat of stucco. All heat-leaks are permanently sealed and your house is new, smart, modern in appearance, and worth thousands of dollars more in resale value. In new construction use "Permax" Building Paper because it is absolutely damp-proof.

Use "Ten Test" Plaster Base inside your home for added insulation and sound-proofing. We will be glad to give you full information about these modern aids to home improvement, which will easily pay for themselves in added comfort and fuel saved.

Dining-room Problem Solved

A house with a small dining-room presents a problem to the housewife who wants to serve the family's meals in a formal room. One generally thinks of gay and cheerful breakfast sets of the less formal woods, or brightly painted, in such a room. But with a little care and planning, delightful effects may be obtained along classical line. The Home Improvement Plan shows a way in which to obtain money for interior betterment.

One housewife wanted a change in the dining room, when she was re-decorating the rest of the house. She planned a formal room that was suited to the small space. A white wainscoting ran around the room, and the walls above it were papered with a small white design on a light blue background. The ceiling was painted the exact shade of blue of the paper, and a narrow white moulding furnished contrast. A composition black and white floor, resembling marble, was laid.

Three windows were grouped along one side of the room and a casement bay window was at one end. Originally a gaily cushioned window seat had been in this place, but in the modernization, the wide sill was covered with dark blue tile and formed a miniature conservatory for plants and flowers. A crystal chandelier, in keeping with the director furniture, purchased by the housewife with her own funds, replaced the former electric fixture.

The furniture, purchased by the housewife, consisted of a black dining-table and six chairs. The chairs had gold line decorations, and white leather upholstery. Two white cabinets, with black and gold trim, were placed on either side of the bay window for glassware, linen and silver. Side draperies of a dark blue brocade, matching the tile in the window ledge, were hung and were topped with a valance of light blue, to match the wallpaper.

AS THE SHAVING MIRROR SEES YOU

It sounds crazy, but the hardest thing for a man to do is to see himself — as others see him — when he's shaving. So peek into Eddie August's mirror as he re-assigns himself to mowing the hay.

There's no use getting down in the mouth about it, though it's a tough job. No, he's not inviting Joe Louis to hit him on the chin. He's just getting into a lather over shaving — the calmest do.

"Keep a stiff upper lip — and lower one, too," says Eddie as he wades into the whiskers with a razor. The funnier the face you make, the more solid a surface the razor has to glide over.

Quick, Watson, the caustic! How it does burn! But it stops the hemorrhage in the nick of time. Girls, you don't know how lucky you are, not having to shave your pretty faces every day.

Lots of Smoke—Find the Fire

For a fire to rubber at, you should have been in Washington, D.C., when a big junk yard flamed up! That huge pall of black smoke that eddies thickly upward gives you an idea of what it was like. More than 100,000 discarded automobile tires feed the flames, on which firemen futilely pour water above.

Grieving Leopold Smiles Again

Victim of profound grief ever since the tragic death of beautiful Queen Astrid, his consort, a year and a half ago, King Leopold of the Belgians has seldom appeared in public in a happy, relaxed mood. However, there is a twinkle in his eye and a slight smile on his lips as he waits his turn in a golf match at Ascot, England. His partner is Pamela Barton, British women's links queen.

"We can have them ALL under the HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN"

IT'S very likely that within the next few days a representative of a plumbing, building, flooring or roofing contractor, or of a painter and decorator will call on you with detailed information on the Home Improvement Plan and how it can be applied to suit YOUR home and YOUR budget. Study the literature each one of them leaves with you: decide on the specific improvement or improvements to be started this season and get definite cost figures.

SIMPLIFIED FINANCING
Any contractor, supply firm or architect can help you arrange a Home Improvement Plan loan if you need it, to finance the work for you, or you can apply direct to your banker. No security or endorsement needed: you simply show that you can repay in monthly instalments and the loan is made, the work proceeds, your home is made brighter and more livable and men get needed jobs.

Full information on the Home Improvement Plan and what it covers may be obtained from your local committee, your Provincial Chairman, your bank or the National Employment Commission, Ottawa.

Specialties Push Upward In Quiet Wall St. Trading

New York, April 17.—Mild support appeared for leading stocks in today's market, and a number of specialties pushed up substantially.

Dealings were exceptionally quiet, even for a Saturday, and numerous issues held to a restricted area throughout the session. There was an assortment of losers at the close.

Tending to promote a slightly better feeling toward the list was a moderate comeback in some major commodities which suffered a world-wide crash yesterday on European peace moves and rumors of an arms conference among the powers in the near future.

Boasting stock favorites also were brighter earnings statements and favorable dividend actions.

Coppers, leading Friday's slow retreat, drifted to still lower levels. Transfers were around 450,000 shares.

Boasted by further business optimism. Certain lead, International Printing Ink and Mead Corporation got up two points or so each, the latter two at new peaks for the year.

Dome Mines rallied when directors declared an extra dividend to stockholders of $2 a share.

Others displaying improvement most of the time included Loew's, U.S. Industrial Alcohol, N.Y. Central, Du Pont, Chrysler, Graham-Paige, Boeing and Shell Union Oil.

Narrow to off as much as a point or more were Anaconda, Kennecott, Seaboard Oil, General Electric, General Motors, Chrysler, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Goodrich, U.S. Rubber, Great Northern, Southern Railway and Consolidated Edison.

Thirty Industrials—180.51, off 0.24.

Twenty utilities—131.13, off 0.08.

MINES SLUMP AT TORONTO Substantial Gains In Winnipeg Wheat

Toronto, April 17.—Mining shares concluded the week with another severe price decline. Irregularly lower prices ruled in the industrial section.

Sherritt-Gordon sold for a loss of 35 cents to 2.25, making the decline 50 cents in two days. Pend Oreille weakened 35 cents; Waite-Amulet 10 cents.

Lake Shore suffered to 49 1/4 for a loss of more than two points. Losses of 20 to 50 cents were recorded for Macassa, Little Long Lac, Pickle Creek, Siscoe, Wright-Hargreaves, Stadacona and Mining Corporation.

Other golds off 10 to 15 cents were Moneta, Central Patricia, Hard Rock, Kellogg, Kerr-Addison, MacLeod-Cochran, East Malaric and Premier.

Losses were limited to about the minimum fractions in foods, steels and oils. In utilities narrow gains predominated. Distillers-Sears & Co. dropped a fraction.

Western oils were comparatively quiet with Calgary-Edmonton down 25 cents, and losses of 3 to 8 cents showing at the close for Foothills, Home, Dalhousie, Okalta and Calmont.

Prosecute For Tax Collection

MATERIAL CUT DUE IN TAXES

Average Amount Property Owners Would Pay on 44 Mills Down 5 Per Cent

The extent to which actual taxes would be reduced by the establishment of a forty-four mill rate on the lower city assessment this year was indicated today by hypothetical cases worked out by George A. Okell, city assessor collector.

Mr. Okell took the case of a $2,000 home on a $600 lot. Last year, with the mill rate at forty-five and taxable assessment at 65 per cent of improvements and 100 per cent of lands, taxes on such holdings would have been $85.50.

The improvement assessment for this year has been lowered by 5 per cent. On that basis the gross assessment on the $2,000 home would be cut to $1,900 and taxes on the property, including the lot, on a forty-four mill rate would be $80.74, a figure $4.76 below that of last year. The reduction in that case would be equivalent to approximately 5 1/2 per cent in taxes actually paid.

Taking a more expensive property, Mr. Okell presented figures for a $1,000 lot and $4,000 home. Last year the actual taxes on such a property would have been $162. This year, under a forty-four mill rate, the taxes would be $152.88, or $9.32 less than last year. The reduction would amount to approximately 5.7 per cent.

WINE MAKING IS REVIEWED

Agriculturists Hear Dr. Newton and Visit Growers' Wine Plant

"The wine industry is here to stay," declared Dr. William Newton in reading a paper to members of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists at their monthly dinner in Speedie's Cafe yesterday evening.

Following the meeting, the members were shown over the plant of the Growers' Wine Company by Hugh Lamont.

The latest wine manufacturing methods had been adopted in Victoria, Dr. Newton said. There were always "doubting Thomases" who considered that because wine was made in British Columbia it could not be good. These people, he said, would consume the vilest concoctions providing the label indicated foreign origin.

Dr. Newton went on to describe the various methods used in preparing wines. He pointed out that though the industry was as old as history, science had stepped in and removed many of its hazards. He showed how wine making here had aided local growers.

H. E. Hallwright, chairman, reviewed the activities of the society. Arthur Jackson gave two songs.

Victoria Boy Wins Contest

Against a world-wide field of thousands of philatelists, Gerald Coventry, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Coventry of this city, recently won first prize in the annual Stanley Gibbons Ltd. stamp competition.

Gerald, who founded a stamp club in Oak Bay High School while a student there last June, is now working in the Bank of Commerce at Trail.

Last year he won second place in the same competition. A long and intensive study of stamps enabled him to pick the twelve most popular issues of stamps during 1936.

Kitten and Chicks Are Friendly

The day-old chicks provide objects of friendly curiosity for the tiny black kitten as it studies them in their basket. Although by the time it gets old, its curiosity may contain more of a threat, it looks quite maternal as it hovers over the basketful of fluff with one of the chicks investigating its paw. The chick perched on the handle of the basket was worrying about being so high up in the world and would not stand up. The picture was taken by The Times cameraman at the Swan Lake Hatchery of Donald Gurney.

FARM OFFERS VARIED SCENE

Locke Property at Royal Oak Ideal For Movie Making, Company Finds

Central Films Limited was back at work this morning on a location near Victoria which the producer of the company, Kenneth J. Bishop, describes as offering more variety of scenery than any other spot of its size on Vancouver Island.

Locke's farm, the old Rithet property at Royal Oak, can be reached by the studio cars and trucks in a few minutes, yet it boasts views which might be anywhere in the foothills of the Rockies.

There are rocks, steep hillsides, patches of tall timber, rolling farmlands and virgin brush. The high places of the farm give views across miles of Saanich country to the lake beyond.

The company expected to be through with its work on the Locke property today.

If the weather is good during the next week, exteriors will be filmed at Langford, Beaver and Elk Lakes.

Sheehan, general agent for the C.P.R. in Seattle; E. F. L. Sturdee, general passenger agent in Vancouver; H. J. Maguire, district baggage agent at Vancouver, and W. ## Parking Rules Being Ignored

Persons who make a habit of ignoring parking regulations in the city and allow their cars to stand on downtown streets for half a day at a time were warned by Police Chief Heatley this morning that the practice must stop.

Recently it has been reported to the chief by members of the traffic squad that these regulations in many instances are being completely ignored. While not wishing to appear unreasonable with business men, the chief said the present practice could not be tolerated and that prosecutions would follow any future violations.

In response to recent complaints that roaming dogs are damaging gardens, Alex Kennedy, poundkeeper, this morning warned city dog owners that their animals should not be allowed to trespass on private property. According to the strict letter of the law, Mr. Kennedy explained that dogs were not allowed to roam the streets within the city fire limits without being held on a leash or without being in custody of the owner. Many persons, the poundkeeper said, were under the impression that dogs were permitted to roam at large as long as they were licensed. This, he continued, was entirely incorrect.

The interview between the civic employees association and the City Council on the wage question has been changed from 4 o'clock Monday afternoon to 7:30 o'clock Monday evening. The council meeting, however, will start at the earlier hour.

THE PRINCESS AND THE QUEEN

HENRY THE VIIIth AND
DISAPPOINTED THAT THEIR
ELIZABETH WASN'T A

SHE

BUT WAS CROWNED AT TWENTY-FIVE.

THE little girl pictured here by Artist Ethel Hays became the world's most important baby from the very hour of her birth, which was at 2:40 in the morning of April 21, 1926. She is Princess Elizabeth, heir presumptive to the British crown since the abdication last December of her uncle, Edward VIII.

Little Princess Elizabeth, whose 11th birthday party will be celebrated just a few short weeks before the coronation of her father, King George VI, will some day reign over the empire in her own name, should her father die without a male heir. She will not become heir apparent, however, until all possibility of a male heir is removed.

There has been only one Elizabeth as queen regnant in British history. That was famed good Queen Bess, the last of the Tudors, whose reign was certainly as colorful as that of any ruler to wear the crown. Queen Elizabeth was the daughter of Henry VIII, by Anne Boleyn, and her parents both mourned because she was a girl and not a boy.

During part of Mary Tudor's reign, Elizabeth was held prisoner in the Tower of London, but the whole countryside rejoiced, as a reaction to "Bloody Mary's" reign, when Elizabeth was crowned at 25.

She furnished the money that financed Sir Francis Drake's famous trip around the world. On his return she knighted him on the open deck of his ship, the Golden Hind.

At 60, she made a favorite of the youthful Earl of Essex, who later was to be charged with treason and beheaded. When he married she was furious; he turned his back on her—something not done to a queen—and she spiritedly retaliated by slapping his face.

Today, more than three centuries after the death of good Queen Bess, it is indeed a different world that this other Elizabeth lives in. Kings and queens are different, too, than they were in those days when the displeasure of the throne might mean imprisonment in the grim Tower, or the loss of one's head. So Princess Elizabeth plays unconcernedly with her younger sister, Princess Margaret Rose, still too much the little girl to worry very much about crowns and thrones and the supreme responsibilities that go with reigning over the greatest empire in history.

IT SEEMS THAT THE EARL OF ESSEX
TURNED HIS BACK UPON

MUSIC

Famous Violin Player
Bids Farewell to Music

By G. J. D.

"Study! Study! Study! This does not mean, as so many young students seem to think, to study singing only. It means to study singing, repertory, sight-reading, ear-training, harmony, history of music; and it means, above all, to hear all the good music possible."—William Thorner.

THEN AGAIN, witness the Major Bowes amateur radio broadcasting. Many hundreds through the fortunate hour have been helped to positions they, in their self-help and lonely endeavor, so wished and strived for, always thinking they had something to offer in the musical world. Amidst tremendous difficulties they at last evinced their talents in this amateur hour that otherwise would have passed unrecognized, unnoticed. And many here have seen: how beneficial the scholarships by our music institutions have proven in many instances.

All this is sufficient, it is hoped, to point to one of the chief objects of the pupils' recitals by the B.C. Music Teachers' Federation, namely, scholarship funds. It is also pointed out that this matter lies in the forefront of the Victoria Musical Arts Society winter series of concerts. In its yearly statement the society has at its disposal four shares of Canadian Western National Gas 6 per cent preferred stock, par value $100 per share, which has been set aside as a scholarship fund investment. It has proven a somewhat difficult problem and a bit slow at the start, but once the good, the importance, is seen, such funds will become all the more available, it is believed.

CAN CANADA'S SCHOOLS EQUAL THIS?

IMAGINE any similar contest in our own Dominion where one class would be competing in the test piece, the "Mastersingers" Overture, and in another contest the first movement of the "Unfinished." One may ask: Is this the reason of the great general support given to many of the finest symphony orchestras of the world that prevails in America? It is believed that children schooled in such surroundings, when grown to manhood and womanhood, will not relinquish the love of the happy music hours they spent with musical instruments in the early school days. They become supporters of their city orchestras.

BIDS FAREWELL

THE WRITER has never forgotten the impression made upon him in his early days when the press of England published the news that the popular English singer, Muriel Foster, the possessor of a wonderful rich contralto voice, was about to bid farewell to the concert platform.

But still greater (to the writer) is the announcement that Lionel Tertis, England's greatest player of the viola, and perhaps the finest player in the world (personally known to the writer), is to bid farewell to music.

For a number of years Lionel Tertis was a member of the celebrated Wesley String Quartette, with the writer's brother, Spencer, considered to be the connecting link between the famous Joachim Quartette and present-day similar ensembles. In his case it is especially to be regretted, as Tertis has done so much in raising the prestige of the viola and the standard of its playing, making it worth while for composers to write specially for its compass and tone quality.

BOW ARM AFFLICTED

FOR SOME TIME the famous violinist has been suffering with that dreaded affliction rheumatism, which with him affects his bow arm, and he found: "It was increasingly difficult to play certain passages, and that he 'could not give the necessary practice to keep up his playing.' A letter from London tells 'he will give up his playing altogether; his decision has created quite a sadness among those who know him well.'"

He took farewell of his public on February 24 at a BBC concert in celebration of his sixtieth birthday. "When his supreme playing earned as warm praise as ever," London's press paid him magnificent tributes, emphasizing his loss especially in chamber music, where he for years played such a prominent part, and are not quite sure "whether it is the wisdom or the modesty of it that pleases most."

EMINENT CONDUCTOR
LEADS AID TO FESTIVALS

SIR ADRIAN BOULT, the distinguished musical director of the British Broadcasting Corporation, now numbered among the musical knights of England, has accomplished much for British music and has in a great measure popularized the best orchestral music on the Continent, and in all his activities he has found time to help the competitive festival movement by his vitalizing methods in rehearsing and conducting large bodies of amateur singers and players. Three weeks ago Sir Adrian conducted the large BBC Orchestra when Szegedy played Prokofiev's violin concerto.

"TO FACE SPIRITUAL CHALLENGE"

LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI, a Londoner by birth, and a student at Queen's College, Oxford, is one of the world's most distinguished conductors, as everybody now knows. His intention of going to Hollywood—he says "this is the next logical step"—following the sequence of his first movie, "The Big Broadcast of 1937," has created world-wide attention. He has no intention of deserting his work as conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, but goes to Hollywood "to face a great spiritual challenge," he says in an article in Liberty magazine, and believes "the motion picture is above all else the current language of humanity; it belongs to the millions, and people are ready and eager for great music." "Why," he asks, "should some people feel that I am deserting real art? All my life I have tried to make music (Stokowski is fifty-five this April) red hot and inspired, not to reach people who were already music lovers, but to stir those to whom great music had always been remote." In the hands of Hollywood, he believes, "lies the future spiritual destiny of at least millions of the people in the United States."

The Theatre of Tomorrow

By HARRY TAUBER

THE THEATRE of tomorrow is like every original theatre-type of the past, an instrument of the mind, introducing to fellowman the highest achievements of a spiritual elite, in art-forms. No revival of the theatre, nor "star-systems," nor championship can possibly solve the problem which the present development of consciousness demands.

The emphasis of the "Here and Now of Mass" as we find it in the times of Euclid, found its manifestation also in the architectural principle of the ancient theatre, where the "action," the essence of the "drama," was performed in the centre of the spectators, who could, in walking around look on these "living-sculptures" from all sides to comprehend (although perhaps more emotionally) the "substance or mass" in its "three-dimensionality."

The theatre of the Baroque, with all its predecessors, points to an entire separation of spectacle and spectators, as is shown by the "proscenium-arch," footlights, orchestra-pit, and lately we merely substitute an iron or asbestos fire-safety-curtain for the former drapes. A "mock-perspective" is set up with the aid of a "backdrop," "wings" (a sort of picture-slices), and some foreground indications, all leading to an imaginative point in "the far distance"; it is the point of turnover from mass into space, which corresponds to the importance of the decimal-point of the mathematics of Descartes.

The problem of today and of tomorrow is the exploration of space, (remember the efforts of Professor Picard and the new "largest" refracting telescopes, etc.), all concentration is given to the polar opposite of mass, to space. This penetration into the nature of space presupposes an intellectual instrument which is aiding us in the perception of the "impossible," space, and which we find in our concepts of time and motion.

This penetration of space manifests in the theatre in the tendency of pushing the spectacle into the auditorium, and we even go so far as to have actors performing "through" the spectators. This indicates the continuum of mass and space! In defining an object or mass in space, the advanced mind recognizes the need of a "dimension" beyond the customary length, breadth and height, a fourth dimension which we may call Time (the "life-time" of an object). Herewith we realize the impermanency of all appearances in the physical or three-dimensional world. Time as such, too, is imperceptible by the senses. For any given moment we are confronted by polar opposites, which we may call the Past and the Future.

Through the power of imaginative cognition man can transcend Time or the fourth dimension, as we read in the Apocalypse of St. John: "And there shall be time no longer." That is, in the fifth dimension, which we may call "Pure motion," the fourth dimension or Time appears as a sort of "panorama," a four-dimensional space, just as in the fourth dimension we think of space as of three-dimensional "volume." Equipped with such higher knowledge, we become aware of the Past and Future simultaneously, as if in a sort of "panorama." It is exactly this which in the theatre of tomorrow manifests as a new type of theatre.

The Kantastasteri at Helsinki, in Finland, shows not only the tendency of "interpenetration," but even the "reversion" of the location of spectacle and spectators, which were first divided so strictly in baroque times.

The next phase of development in the theatre of tomorrow is shown in Erwin Piscator's "Totaltheatre," in Berlin, where, besides the main stage, a chain of stage wagons or wagon stages encircle the accommodations for the spectators. Straight ahead of the spectators is the main action taking place, while towards the right are still visible those scenes which have just passed and which fade away behind them; and from the left we become aware already the oncoming places of action which have the meaning of the future. In this manner is shown in an art-form the meaning of the expansion of the moment, embracing past and future simultaneously.

The most advanced form of the theatre of tomorrow, the theatre of pure motion or of the fifth dimension, also shows the spectator surrounded by the spectacle, "in the midst of conditions," yet both the accommodation for the spectators as well as the encompassing stage-ring are constructed to rotate either in the same direction or opposite to one another and at any desired speed. No curtains nor footlights nor any dominating division between spectacle and spectators will be made, but a harmonious union of both in motion is to reveal the relativity of all life and its organic development of processes.

This new type of theatre will not exclude the earlier forms of productions, as the technical devices will allow for the reduction of the "panorama-stage" to the limited view that equals the effect of our conventional theatres, but at the same time the theatre of tomorrow will certainly transform and inspire to new organically developing plays of a "cosmic nature."

The theatre of tomorrow will thus not depreciate the old, but will rather fulfill the promises of the old, and will simultaneously offer us the instrument for the mind, to introduce us into a new form of consciousness or awareness of "higher facts" through the art of the theatre of tomorrow.

Virginia Woolf Does
Novel on People
And Flight of Time

VIRGINIA WOOLF has taken the familiar pattern of the biographical-chronicle novel, of which scores have been written in the last few years, and made it over into something peculiarly her own in her new book, "The Waves," which is only one of a large number of the day's important publications.

Readers of Mrs. Woolf's most recent piece of fiction, "The Waves," who found themselves lost in its abstractions will not have nearly so hard a time understanding its successor, although, like everything this distinguished writer has ever done, it has to be read with care and concentration.

Wholly unlike "Mrs. Dalloway" and "To the Lighthouse," "The Waves" covers a long period in time. It is done with a sense of greater ease and freedom than the two astonishing books just mentioned, both of which are masterpieces of technical skill in style as well as construction.

It also deals with a larger number of people, cutting across more extensive segments of life, and in this sense is a closer approach to the older school of novel writing than most of Mrs. Woolf's work. But where it differs so markedly from fiction that follows the lives of a group of characters against a moving background of their period, with Time as the real protagonist, is that books of this kind usually rely upon incident—or plot—for their interest and also quite frequently lean heavily upon the scenery.

"The Waves," as the title might suggest, is far more subjective, more abstract and deeper. Nothing out of the ordinary happens to the many people in the book and, instead of the stress upon concrete historical material to be found in the usual chronicle novel, Mrs. Woolf writes—and with what beauty!—about the seasons and the changes in the weather. She tells an everyday story of how human beings grow old, an infinitely puzzling process to the individual, and with such skill as to give it a magical hold on the reader's attention.

SOME SIGNIFICANT
REFLECTIONS UPON LIFE

THERE are key passages scattered through that may help me to explain what the book is about, never an easy thing to do with this author's novels, for one would need to write as subtly as she does to produce perfectly satisfactory reviews. Here, for example, is one of her principal characters, now an old woman, reflecting upon what has happened to her:

"My life, she said to herself. That was odd, it was the second time that evening that somebody had talked about her life. And I haven't got one, she thought. Oughtn't a life to be something you could handle and produce?—a life of seventy-odd years. But I've only the present moment, she thought. . . . A long strip of life lay behind her. Edward crying, Mrs. Levy talking; snow falling; a sunflower with a crack in it; the yellow omnibus trotting along the Bayswater Road. And I thought of myself, I'm the youngest person in this omnibus; now I'm the oldest. . . . Millions of things came back to her. Atoms danced apart and massed themselves. But how did they compose what people called a life?

Then there is a young man who comes back from a farm in Africa to London, from solitude and sheep, to society, and is sure people talk of nothing but "politics and money." He, too, is reflective and finds himself blocked from real communication with anybody:

"It's no go, North thought. He can't say what he wants to say; he's afraid. They're all afraid; afraid of being laughed at, afraid of giving themselves away. He's afraid, too, he thought, looking at the young man with a fine forehead and a weak chin who was gesticulating too emphatically. We're all afraid of each other, he thought; afraid of what? Of criticism; of laughter; of people who think differently. . . . That's what separates us; fear, he thought."

ONE HALF-CENTURY

FROM 1880 TO THE PRESENT

THE NOVEL covers a half-century, loosely speaking. Its various sections are dated, the first "1880," the last—and longest—"Present Day." The first division introduces us to the Partridge family, with Colonel Abel as its head, a dying mother and several children. It ends with the mother's death and the story is taken up again in 1891. Brief sections follow the fortunes of the family and its numerous ramifications from 1907 through 1918, whence we skip to our own times.

The characters are too numerous and their relationships too involved for me to attempt to describe them; they come to life, though, almost if not quite, without exception, which is one of the obvious reasons for the held the novel has. Others are, or were for me, the almost miraculous skill with which Mrs. Woolf can make pictures—you keep feeling as if you were dreaming in the Luxembourg Museum when she turns to description—and the sheer loveliness of her prose.

And so great is her mastery of what somebody once called her "artfully artificial" method of story telling that we can never read her without feeling that she gets more out of this peculiar technique than there is actually in it; one has only to see how hollow it can be in the hands of its imitators to realize how much she does with it.

It would require more than a single reading to be sure where we should place "The Waves" in Mrs. Woolf's work, but we enjoyed it far more than we did "The Waves," and we suspect that it will be accepted as one of the finest things she has yet accomplished.

Clipper Ship Era
Presented In History
As Glamorous Age

THERE is a rich feast for anyone who is interested in the lore of the sea—or, for that matter, for anyone who can enjoy a colorful and romantic slice of American history—in "Clipper Ships of America and Great Britain," by Helen and Jacques Le Grange (Putnam).

This book is a complete record of the great clipper ship era. It contains an extensive text giving the case histories of forty or more of the fastest ships ever built, and some thirty-five wood engravings in color showing how these vessels looked.

From about 1846 to 1860, naval architects served the great god speed. They brought out lean, knife-like vessels of incredible swiftness and grace, which recorded speeds as high as twenty-one knots and which were, perhaps, as breathtakingly beautiful as anything ever created by man.

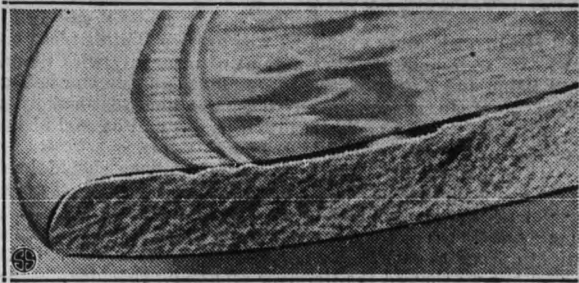

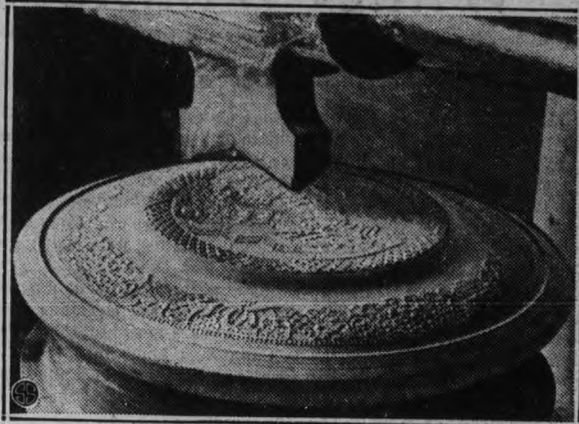

The clippers, as a matter of fact, were woefully uneconomic. They lacked carrying capacity, they were fragile and occasionally treacherous, and the demand for speed caused them to be driven so hard that their lives were very short. As soon as the era of sky-high freight rates ended, the extreme clippers vanished.

But, while they lasted—what ships they were, and what names they had! Herald of the Morning, Flying Cloud, Golden West, Sovereign of the Seas; how those names fit them, how they bespeak the pride and love the builders had for them!

This book does ample justice to its subject. It is an invaluable record of an exciting and glamorous era.

Scientists Aid Ceramic Industry In Clay Research For Fine China

Magnified cross section of a dinner plate showing the varying depths of the colored glaze that makes the pattern. The color contrast from white to deepest shades is secured by a method comparable with the engraving method used in making newspaper halftones.

By ROBERT D. POTTER

SCIENTIFIC research in ceramic laboratories is on the trail of discovery which will greatly extend the uses of North America's clays in the chinaware that graces the nation's tabletops.

At the National Bureau of Standards in Washington and in laboratories of the Tennessee Valley authority near Knoxville the last two years have shown intensive exploration of the possibility of using native American clays for the production of fine translucent whitewares, much of which is still made, in part, from a superior clay imported from England.

Whether English clays are really superior to American kaolin or whether the latter can be refined to a form which competes with the imported variety is now a debatable topic. That fact, in itself, is a tribute to the research, for previously the subject was not even open to argument among pottery manufacturers.

JUST MUD TO LAYMAN

Kaolin, one should hasten to explain, is simply the potters' and chemists' technical name for a particular kind of pure and white clay which the layman would probably call—and rightly—just mud.

It is a long way geologically and in the evolution of the potters' art from the mud of kaolin to the prized "company" china on the family dinner table. Geologically kaolin consists of decomposed granite. The best kind has crumbled to dust and has then been purified by weathering. Deposits of kaolin in England are especially good for making the finer types of tableware, and many an American-made dish, teacup or saucer still contains some of the soil of good old Cornwall.

But America too has its decomposed granites and the resulting clay. North Carolina primary kaolins as a convenient and nearby source have been main materials used in the TVA tests. Major previous handicaps to the exploitation of these North Carolina clays for fine china have been three: (1) It was believed that there was not sufficient material available for large-scale operations; (2) the kaolins of Carolina varied from one small deposit to another, and (3) the refined North Carolina kaolin previously marketed was low in its plasticity and strength and extremely difficult to work.

100 YEAR SUPPLY AVAILABLE

Already exploration has disclosed that point one—the supposed lack of large amount of material—is false. A reserve of refinable material is available which would last the American whiteware industries for generations to come.

Improved methods of refining American clays, involving the use of TVA's large potential supplies of cheap electricity, are making headway in clearing the two final objections—lack of uniformity and the difficulties as to strength and workability in the refined product.

One whole school of thought in the ceramic field refuses to admit that American clays are any less refined than those of England and that the previous lack of development of

It is argued that if the automobile industry has to use materials with such variation as those supplied to the ceramic industry, it, too, would have reached a less advanced stage of development.

Hand in hand with ways to utilize clays has been research to improve and develop electric heating in ceramic kilns. Here again TVA with its electricity frankly admits that the work is still in a preliminary stage of development. A few electrically-heated kilns are in use throughout the United States and many in Europe.

NEW CERAMIC ADVANCE

With the same thought in mind the National Bureau of Standards has just about completed the construction of a giant "tunnel" kiln heated by electricity which will be the first of its kind in an American laboratory. Such tunnel kilns make for continuous firing of the pottery or ceramics for they are fed in one end, gradually approach the maturing temperatures of some 2,400 degrees Fahrenheit, and then cool off and come out at the other end of the tunnel.

Such experiment indicates clearly that the American ceramic industry is no backward business resting on its venerable laurels and content with old-fashioned methods. As another example of progress witness the new photographic process of Walter D. Ford of Columbus, Ohio, which can transfer any given drawing, or even a portrait, into a design for chinaware at a fraction of the present cost. In effect the Ford process adapts the accomplishments of the newspaper or magazine halftone engraving to produce the color gradation in a chinaware design.

UNIFORM MATERIALS OBTAINED

On a laboratory scale this goal has been achieved and novel refining methods have been introduced which may soon turn the American manufacturers from their older time-tried ways to new methods and a wider use of American materials. These improved refining methods can bring, potentially, a greater mechanization to the industry.

Ceramic scientists have long reasoned that this delayed mechanization of the ceramics industry has, in part, been due to the variations in the clays and other materials which eventually become table whiteware.

Experiments in the ceramics laboratory of Tennessee Valley Authority have discovered ways to use native American clays in producing the finest type of flawless table whiteware. Shown above is the different in translucence which heating in an electric kiln can bring.

If Salmon Cannot Climb Ladders Elevators Help Them at New Dam

IF THE INGENUOUS plan of Federal hydraulic engineers and technicians of the U.S. Bureau of Fisheries to make fish "walk" up-stairs works as well in practice as it looks on scale models, the $15,000,000 salmon industry of Oregon and Washington will be saved from the ruin threatened by the erection of the gigantic Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams across the Columbia River.

The average annual "run" numbers about 3,000,000 fish. Driven by an implacable instinct, they leave the ocean, and, like homing pigeons, return to the streams of their birth. They fight their way upstream against the current, not only to the same river, but frequently to the same locality in which they were spawned. They hurdle precipitous falls, slither through labyrinthian rapids and leap over rocky barriers. When the obstacle can be neither circumvented or hurdled, instinct compels them to make futile leap after leap until they die of exhaustion.

SEVENTY-TWO-FOOT BARRIER FOR SALMON TO SURMOUNT

The nearly completed dams, presenting a seventy-two-foot wall across the path of the silvery horde, form such an impassable barrier. But the engineers have devised an elaborate system of "elevators" to lift the salmon over the dams and "ladders" by which they can detour around the ends.

The Bonneville Dam is really two dams separated by Bradford Island. The Main Dam connects Bradford Island with the Washington bank of the river. It is intended for water storage only. The other side of Bradford Island is linked to Oregon by the Power House Dam, where the actual harnessing of the river's force takes place. As the fish, traveling up-stream, arrive before the dams, they are collected and diverted into either the fish elevators or ladders. A different system is used at each dam.

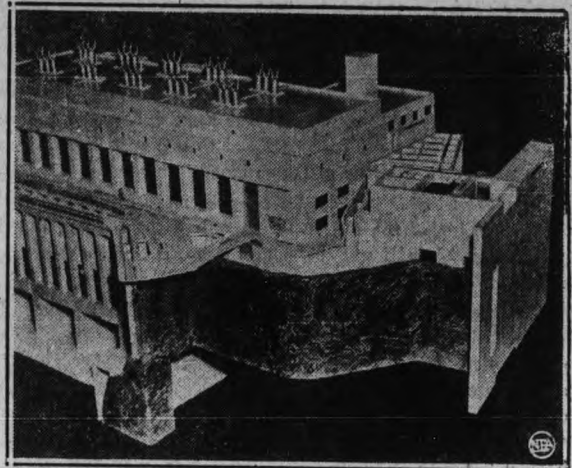

The Main Dam has eighteen spillway gates, over which a vast amount of surplus water will flow under freshest conditions. Salmon are attracted by a swift flowing current. So the flow of water from one spillway gate at each end of the dam is restricted by training walls for a distance of 175 feet out from the face of the dam. The swift current thus formed acts as a lure for the fish, but they are prevented from entering this chute by a heavy wire screen. A smaller, funnel-shaped screen at the side diverts them into a byway that leads to the fish elevators and ladders.

WALK UP TO DAM'S TOP

A fish "ladder" is really a winding staircase, whose one-foot high steps lead in a rising detour from the low downstream face of the dam, around the end to the higher upstream level. As the fish, lured onto the steps, leap over them one by one, they literally "walk up-stairs" around the dam.

The fish "elevators" are really locks, similar to those on a canal. They are concrete shafts, twenty by thirty feet square, designed so that they can be alternately emptied and flooded with water. When the chamber is full, the entrance gate closes, and water is admitted through the floor to flood the lock, thus raising the fish to the top of the dam, where they flop down on the upstream side and continue their

bas-relief cameo style at about half the cost of a real cameo.

Trick of the Ford process is to make photographically a master raised, negative plaster mold of the chosen design containing all the little depressions and little raised portions, which will form the face of the plate. The plastic body materials are pressed against this master mold by a profile tool which forms the bottom of the plate in a projection stage called jiggering.

After drying the plates are heated in the kiln in a step which makes them hard and creates what the potters call bisque. The decorative glaze is then applied either by dipping or spraying and the plate is again fired to fuse the glaze.

In the Ford process, where there are depressions, the colors come out deep and intense. On the high spots of the bisque the white background shows through. At the in-between elevations of the bisque one obtains the color shades between these two extremes. The similarities to halftone printing are evident. (Copyright, 1937, by Science Service)

Human Voice Is Improved Upon

WASHINGTON.

EDITORS edit the news. So far broadcasters, movie and record makers could only audit, not edit, the human voice. Because they could not edit, they cast off singers, actors whose voices do not stand the audition test.

Hope for the cast-offs may lie in U.S. Patent No. 2,064,305, just granted to John Hays Hammond Jr., holder of some 400 patents, son of the famous civil engineer.

His latest invention is an electrical voice editor. On movie film sound track, or phonograph disk, it records only the most pleasing qualities in the artist's voice. It suppresses the unpleasant squawks, thereby making a bad voice sound better; possibly good.

Main works of the voice editor are a plurality of parallel electrical paths between the microphone and the recording instrument. Each path has a filter which filters out unpleasant qualities in the particular type voice for which it is designed.

Thus, when broadcasting or recording, baritone Smith's voice would pass through a filter specially designed to make his voice sound pleasant. When songstress Brown started performing before the microphone, the control man would cut out Smith's filter and switch in the one that beautifies her

Captain Vancouver's Travels to the South Seas

A HUNDRED and seventy years ago, most boys in England did not go to school very long, if at all. In those days there were no public tax-paid schools. Some boys (and a far smaller number of girls) went to private schools, where their parents paid money for the teaching.

As a rule, a boy went to work at an early age.

So it is no great surprise to find that George Vancouver went to sea at the age of thirteen. He was English-born, but some of his ancestors had come from Holland to settle in England, and there was a strong strain of Dutch blood in his veins.

In regard to far travels, George had more fortune than the average sailor of his time. When only fifteen years old, he visited New Zealand and other islands in the Pacific Oceans, as a member of the crew of the famous Captain Cook.

Those early travels were of value to young Vancouver. He later won his way upward in the service of the sea until he became a lieutenant. Then (when a little more than thirty years of age) he was named captain of a vessel "of 340 tons burden" which was to sail across the Pacific. It was the sloop Discovery, and with it was to go a smaller vessel, the Chatham.

On the first day of April, 1791, the great trip started. The hundred sailors and officers aboard the Discovery and the forty-five men on the smaller ship were merry over setting out on All Fools Day. Some said they would surely be fooled about one object of their journey, which was to find a waterway from the west to the east coast of North America.

Southward on the Atlantic, they sailed, until they reached Cape Town, Africa, three months later. There they stayed several weeks. On an August day they took up their travels once more, going forth to cross the Indian Ocean.

Waves and winds and storms did not halt Vancouver and his men. Once they made use of Antares (the largest of all known stars), to chart their course. In less than six weeks, they came in sight of the southwest coast of Australia. For hundreds of miles they explored the Australian shoreline, then went into the open sea, rounded the island continent, and arrived at Dusky Bay New Zealand.

From New Zealand, they sailed toward the equator, to a region in the Pacific dotted by hundreds of islands and known as the "South Seas." On one island, Tahiti, they made a long visit.

Tahiti and a Coast Trip

THE PEOPLE of Tahiti had English visitors before, and were happy over the arrival of Vancouver's ships. Hardly was anchor cast before dozens of canoes were paddled to the sides of the vessels, each canoe coming to bid them welcome.

Captain Vancouver and a few comrades went ashore, to make a visit to Tahiti's ruler. The chief was away on a visit to another island, but the English were received by the chief's son, a boy of ten years, who took the part of acting-ruler very well. To the captain he gave a present of a plantain leaf and a pig. Later the natives gave dozens of pigs to the whites.

Vancouver spoke of the natives as being "Indians," but they were of a different stock than North American Indians. Their skins were of a rather light-brown color, and their nature seemed lighthearted and free. They did everything they could to make their visitors feel at home, giving them fowls and vegetables to eat, as well as pigs.

Not long before, a ship called the Bounty had visited Tahiti. The natives told Vancouver of the mutiny, and of how some of the sailors had gone to an unknown port. They had reached Pitcairn's Island, but neither the natives nor the English knew it.

Rather sorry to leave lovely Tahiti, the men of the Discovery and the Chatham set sail again. They visited the Hawaiian Islands (then known as the Sandwich Islands), and afterward went almost straight east, to the California coast.

Next the voyagers went northward, past the Oregon shore. They were anxious to find a river or arm of the sea which might stretch eastward far enough to provide a water route to the Atlantic. Oddly enough they missed the mouth of the great Columbia River.

but Captain Vancouver made notes about the natural beauties he saw along the coast of the present states of Oregon and Washington. These included mountains and tall fir trees.

At last an inlet of the sea was found, a strait which had been named after a Spaniard, Juan de Fuca. Spanish, as well as British explorers had been in the region before, and there had been disputes as to whether Spain or Great Britain should own the land. This was an extra reason for Vancouver to make the trip, besides the effort to find an eastward waterway. He was to talk over the terms of a treaty between the two nations with a Spanish leader, and to try to work things out in a friendly, peaceful way.

In our story next Saturday we shall see what happened when he sailed into Friendly Cove, Nootka Sound, and met Senor Quadra, the man who spoke for Spain.

A QUEEN

Victoria Was Awakened
From a Sweet Sleep
When Eighteen and Told She Was Queen of England

NOW THAT we have a princess as heir presumptive to the throne—the ten-year-old Princess Elizabeth—let us go back in thought a hundred years and see how a girl of eighteen became Queen of England and Empress of India.

It was just before 5 o'clock, on a summer morning, that the Lord Chamberlain, accompanied by the Archbishop of Canterbury, hurried to Kensington Palace, London, to break the news to Princess Victoria that she was now Queen.

Everyone in the Palace was asleep, of course, but after a time the gentlemen succeeded in gaining admission and were shown into a room. Here they waited and waited, and as no one came they began to think they had been forgotten. They rang the bell, and said that their business with the Princess was urgent. But still nothing was done. Finally a maid entered the room and explained that as the Princess was in such a sweet sleep, she could not venture to disturb her.

"We are come to the Queen on business of state, and even her sleep must give way to that," said the distinguished visitors.

So the young Queen was awakened, and in a few minutes, hurriedly throwing a long wrap over her night attire, and with her hair falling about her shoulders, she stood before the gentlemen and was told that her uncle, King William IV, had passed on and that she was now Queen.

For a moment the young girl remained silent trying to overcome her emotions, then in a low voice she said quietly to the Archbishop: "I beg Your Grace to pray for me!"

So began, on June 20, 1837, a momentous reign that lasted for more than sixty years.

My garden's full of flowers,
And all the bees are there,
And butterflies in radiant guise
Are flitting everywhere.

And like a dream, so bright
they seem,
I'd seize them for my own—
I'll make a web and capture them,

Before they all have flown.
I'll weave it out of moonlight,
Or out of starry beams,
I'll fling it on my garden,
And catch those restless dreams!

Yet like a dream how dull they seem—
How lifeless in my grasp!
Ah! I will tear their prison up,
And free them from my clasp.

And see! Above my garden
Once more on glowing wing
The butterflies are dancing—
My dreams are fluttering!

The Second Battle of Ypres

BEFORE another Saturday comes around the twenty-second anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres will be held. That was a terrible battle and perhaps all that saved you and me from being little Germans today. If the Germans had broken through the lines on April 22, 1915, the Great War might have ended all of a sudden. But it didn't end and all because the Canadians were there. And the Germans, the old meanies, were using gas for the first time.

We read a little while ago about how the Italians conquered the poor old Ethiopians by using gas—well the Germans used it for their surprise party twenty-two years ago, but the Canadians weren't Ethiopians. The Canadians knew how to fight and if the Italians had had to fight against men like Canadians in Ethiopia why, I guess they'd never have conquered the place. The Spaniards even made the Italians run away.

WELL, THE other evening I was over to Pinto's place and we were going to have a game of monopoly with Skinny and Ralph and Frank, when in came Pinto's uncle and he's always full of stories, particularly those war kind that make your eyes bulge. So we asked him to tell us one and he said alright he'd tell us about the Second Battle of Ypres.

"You know, boys," he said, "all Canadians should know more about that battle, just to bring home to them all the courage of their own boys and to show them the horror of war. I don't want to see any more war but I must admit that I was mighty proud to have been a Canadian at Ypres in 1915. It was awful but we showed the Germans something that day."

"We weren't very experienced troops when it all happened. We had only gone in the line in March. They used to call us colonials and some of the old regiments didn't think very much of us. At this time we were at Ypres and there were some French colonial troops on our right flank. The French colonials were black troops from Africa."

"Well, it was a nice day and there was a light wind blowing from the German trenches towards ours. For three days previously the Germans had bombarded us heavily. Then some of our boys noticed a greenish-yellow vapor drifting from the German trenches over to ours and when it reached us it made us cough. It was terrible stuff—gas. We didn't know what to do to save ourselves from it and hundreds of the boys died from the effects of the gas and some of those that are living today are still bothered with it."

"The French colonial troops didn't waste any time but left for the rear in a hurry. This left a gap in the front line and gave the Germans a chance to get through and our flank was exposed. Our officers spread us out so we could plug the gap, but it was an anxious time. The Germans were following along behind the gas, which they had let out of cylinders which they carried into the trenches."

WELL, to make a long story short, the Germans couldn't say their first gas attack was a success. It meant a new form of warfare and one of the worst that we had to contend with. Once the Germans used gas all the other nations used it and that's why we had to have gas masks.

"Things got organized so that later in the war they used to send the gas over in shells. I served in the artillery later and we used to have gas shells with the high explosive, smoke and shrapnel shells. On a nice quiet night we would throw over a gas barrage. We would send over a couple of high explosive shells and then sneak over a few gas shells. A high explosive shell goes off with a big bang when it hits, but a gas shell just has enough powder in it to crack the shell and let the gas seep out. If it exploded the gas would be broken up. By throwing over high explosive shells with the gas shells you don't hear the gas shells landing. Then you're gassed before you know it."

"When some one would find out gas was coming over on our front there would be a gas alarm sounded. We had big rackets, something like you use to make a noise with on New Year's Eve. Then we had to don our gas masks. Sometimes we had to fire our guns with our gas masks on and it wasn't very nice and the infantry had to stand with them on as well, and it wasn't very comfortable."

IT WAS bad enough in the last war for the soldiers to have to wear gas masks, but now in all European countries the civilians have got to have them. They have to hang them up with their tooth brushes. It's a shame to think that civilized people have to resort to such things. It seems awful that men sit down day after day trying to find some new way of killing people."

"Let's hope they keep the wars over in Europe," said Jack. "Well, it's all right to say that," said Pinto's uncle, "but the airplane has made the world so small. It will be hard to say where the airplanes won't go within another ten years. But remember this as you grow up, never want to go to war. It's too dangerous. Somebody always gets hurt. Why we've still got hospitals full of boys who were wounded in the last war!"

"It sure sounds awful, uncle," said Pinto. "But just the same it always sounds exciting. Why did you go to the war, uncle?"

"Well, that's a bad question to ask," said Pinto's uncle. "I was only sixteen when I joined the army. I told them I was twenty and I got away with it. I'll admit it seemed exciting then, but I'd only been in the trenches a few weeks before I'd had plenty of it. It doesn't take much to take the thrill out of it. No, boys, don't fool yourselves that war's romantic. I always say if another war comes along I'm going to fill up my car with canned goods and hit for the Sooke Hills and hide."

Film Cameraman Becomes Great Inventor

Clark Gable Is Tired of Filmland; Famed Screen Lover "Wants Out"

CLARK GABLE does not expect to play the role of Rhett Butler in "Gone With the Wind."

Clark Gable is getting pretty well fed up with Hollywood. If it was not for his contract—

And that pretty well covers the Gable situation, there being no fresh news of the Gable-Lombard romance.

For quite a while now, the actor has not been giving interviews. Director John Stahl was working him to a frazzle in "Parnell," and Gable did not feel like being pleasant to people who wanted to know what he liked for breakfast and what he thought of the future of the cinema.

But a spell of mountain lion hunting has given him new strength. Likewise a new enthusiasm. "Hereafter," said he, "I'm going to bring 'em back-alive. It's a lot more fun than just popping 'em out of trees."

He rambles happily on the subject of hunting: "It was Wally Beery who got me started on it six years ago. Sent me to a guide named Jack Butler in the Kaibab Forest on the Arizona-Utah line. Boy, I was worse than a dude; I was a ham! I showed up in English riding boots and fancy britches.

"We went after deer that time. I got one, too, but I think I shot at him seventeen times. Butler was nice about it. He said, 'You like this, don't you?' I said yes, I sure liked it. So he said, 'You come back next spring and I'll show you some real sport-huntin' cougar'."

"And ever since then I've been huntin' cougar. This man Butler has ten hounds, and there isn't any thrill like hearing them bawling on a fresh trail or barking when they have got a lion treed.

ALL IN KNOWING HOW

THE WAY you lasso a lion is climb the tree and get out on the same branch with him and toss a loop until you get it over his head. Then you pull him out of the tree—being sure the dogs are tied up first—and another man grabs his tail while you hold the rope. Cougars are awful cowards, and none of this is really dangerous until the third man goes in and ties his feet together. Jack Butler mostly does the feet tying. When you have got him all trussed up, you give him a manure so he cannot claw the peckhorse to pieces.

"We got two live lions into camp on this last trip, but one got away. The other is out here on the back lot now. I gave him to the wardrobe man who went on the hunt with me, but he says the lion is eating him out of

Instead of script lines, Clark Gable wants to tackle snarling mountain lions. Still sporting the sideburns he wore in "Parnell," the screen lover exhibits a young cougar he roped recently in Arizona.

WANTS NONE OF IT

NOTHING has been done about borrowing me for the part," he said. "My studio has not mentioned it. Dave Selznick (who will produce the picture) once spoke to me about it, but only casually. And I don't want it.

"Yeah, that's right—I don't want it. Everybody has read that book, and everybody has a different idea of what Rhett Butler should be like. I would be certain to disappoint a lot of people. It would be the toughest job any actor could think of. Gary Cooper, though—I believe he could do a swell job of it."

It is almost startling to come upon modesty of the Gable type in Hollywood. He actually has an idea that fans are getting tired of him. He imagines that customers look at the marquee of theatres and exclaim, "What—another Gable picture?"

For this reason Mr. Gable wishes that his movie-making could be reduced from five a year, the number now demanded by his contract, to two a year. That way, people would not tire of him so quickly. His contract has four and a half more years to run, so there is no chance of him getting out of the picture business before 1941.

He wants to get out of it, though, and buy that ranch. He wants to buy that ranch before he gets too old to sling a leg over a horse or to twist the tail of a mountain lion.

Stylish Screen Sisters

A lovely de Havilland profile, enhanced by dashing millinery—that is what each of these pictures represents. For blonde Joan de Beauvoir de Havilland (Joan Fontaine to you and Hollywood), right, is half sister to brunette screen star Olivia, whose success she hopes to emulate. Under contract, though a newcomer, Joan already nets $300 a week which, with the $750 Olivia garners weekly, is rather tidy pay for two sisters, both of whom are under twenty-one. Filmland insiders say that Joan, like Olivia, has a great future.

Has Worked Wonders With Technical Photo Improvements

HOLLYWOOD.

KARL FREUND is a big subject to write about. He weighs 240 pounds, and recently strained the scales at about 280. He is not a tall man, either, and from a little distance you cannot tell whether he is walking or rolling.

Mr. Freund gains additional stature, however, from the fact that he is the only man in Hollywood with a three-way contract as writer, director and cinematographer. He himself does not know why he has such a contract, because, although he has done a little writing and considerable directing, he is perfectly content to remain a photographer. "The field for expression is just as good," he says. "Maybe better."

If this is true, Man-mountain Freund has made it so. He can think up more gadgets than Major Hoople, except that the Freund gadgets all seem to work. He is credited with more technical improvements in photography than anybody else in or out of Hollywood.

He made the first "zoom" lens. It would take a fair-sized book on optics to explain about the zoom lens, and this department is not a text on such things. But Freund's contrivance was one of rapidly changing focus which permitted a camera to swing rapidly up to an objective, and away from it, while still keeping the image sharp as a new dime.

Freund was the photographer on "The Last Laugh," with Emil Jannings. After studying a way to shoot Jannings in a drunk scene, the cameraman strapped the camera to his own body and staggered around in front of the actor.

LIGHT PROBLEMS

HE HAS figured out a lot of new ideas about lighting, most of them too technical to go into here. But to all experts in these matters a job of Freund photography is immediately recognizable on the screen.

His world would seem to be merely a world of light and shadow, yet he deals in colors which somehow, intangibly, are translated to the black-and-white screen.

For example: "In sea pictures there usually is dazzling light with color in it. Shining through microscopic drops of water, it is like millions of little lenses. They break up the rays into component parts, and when they are concentrated we have a rainbow. But in a general effect, we get color components which the eye cannot notice, but they are noticed by the camera's eye, all right.

It is funny, he thinks, that the movie studios were built in Hollywood originally because of the advantages of California light. Today technicians are trying to reproduce the light tones of all other parts of the world, from the blue-white Arctic to the dusty copper of the tropics.

Parts of "The Good Earth" were shot in China. Freund noticed that the light seemed different, somehow, so he reproduced the effect when he filmed most of the picture here in Hollywood. Did it with transparent colored discs placed in a wheel which revolved in front of the lens.

By changing the discs he obtained morning, noon, and evening densities, all fairly authentically Chinese. With the same device he produced a sort of mist-velled light for "Parnell," which is supposed to happen mostly in Ireland.

CREATES "CLOUDS"

WHEN LACK of suitable clouds threatened to delay "The Good Earth" indefinitely, Freund set to work on a contraption which would throw cloud shadows over the land. An electric motor and system of gears drew a glass slide in front of the lens, and on the slide were some faintly tinted smudges. Result was that ominous shadows of tumbling storm clouds seemed to be cast on the fields, and the workers raced desperately to harvest their grain.

He has operated a camera for thirty years, and was a newsreel man in Berlin at the outbreak of the war. The army would not take him because of his weight, which came from drinking two gallons of beer a day.

Two months ago Freund became an American citizen. When he arrived in America eight years ago, he was unable to speak any English, and still has a strong accent. Films are "devil-upped" instead of developed.

He likes to tell how he lost so much weight lately. Did it by fasting two days a week and drinking fruit juice. For a while he thought it would kill him, but he feels fine now and has lost ten inches from his waistline.

Garden Hints For This Week

Plant out lettuce sown last month. Give the soil a good dressing of a quick fertilizer.

Alpines can be bought in pots. It is not wise to divide plants in full bloom.

Rose bushes may still be planted.

Roses not yet pruned should be attended to at once.

Sow your vegetables in rows. It is easier to keep down the weeds.

Sow more garden peas, they are always welcome. Dwarf peas are best for early use.

Sow spinach in drills one inch deep and from one foot to eighteen inches apart.

Prick off vegetables sown last month. It is worthwhile to prepare a special trench for runner beans.

Outdoor chrysanthemums may be torn apart and the rooted pieces replanted. Cuttings may also be inserted in sandy soil.

Plant out border carnations and sow seed of same for next year.

Sow half-hardy annuals after the middle of the month, outdoors.

Sprout the potatoes for planting cut later. Do not keep them too warm or the shoots will be weak and sickly. Sprouted potatoes make rapid growth when set.

Chickadee's Diary

I woke up in a big dark place on April 2, and in trying to move around I kept bumping into other chicks in the dark. After a bit a door was opened and then I saw a lot of eggs all around me. Some were chipped and chicks were struggling to get out. The Tom man (all the people call him Tom) came back again and took us out in the light.

There were eighty-two of us, and there were 154 eggs put in, of four different breeds. Fifteen eggs of one breed did not have any chicks in, and the Tom man said, "We won't buy any more eggs from that place."

The Tom man put us in a basket, after he had put two weak chicks to sleep. He said, "Kill 'em now and save trouble after." We were put under a round roof called a juke box. The Tom man said to the boy, "Turn on the juke," but the roof only got nice and warm.

We each got a dip into a milk trough, and then we found a shingle with some fine clam shell on it. On another shingle we found some rolled oats and cut grass. None of us ate the grass the first day. The Tom man put us under the roof after ten minutes, and pulled down some window blinds. We had a nap for an hour, and then had another run around the pen. So to bed. I forgot to tell you that four of us weighed altogether six ounces.

Canada shipped more cheese to Scotland in 1936 than in any year since separate statistics for Scotland have been available.

Local Man Finds Plants Grow Well In Tin Cans

BY CERES

FOR DECORATION, drab-colored porous pots are set in porcelain bowls in the house, and all housewives know about cleaning up the dirt which is washed out of the pots into the bowls through watering.

Now this chore has been removed. Horticulturists have discovered that plants can be grown in waterproof containers—tin cans, porcelain bowls, etc.—just as well as in porous pots.

A local gardener read about this and gave it the severest test. He tried a gladiolus in a tin can. And it was most successful.

He points out that this is a much more economical way of growing house plants. Plant foods are not washed away and watering is kept down to a minimum.

The first essential in growing plants in waterproof containers is to have about half an inch of rubble on the bottom to form a well into which the water can drain. A layer of moss or a clod of earth or even a bit of cloth over the stones will keep the earth from seeping down and clogging the reservoir.

As always watering is an important consideration. If you want to be scientific you can weigh the pot and ascertain the exact amount of water it requires, but most people will be content with feeling the top soil. If it is moist, then the pot needs no water.

Using a waterproof container, this gardener figures a small plant only needs half a cupful a week—a large plant a cupful.

His soil mixture, which may be of interest, is two parts garden loam, one part leaf mould or pulverized peat, and one part sand.

It is pointed out that the handy man with a little paint can make a tin can a very decorative feature for any room in the house.

Machines Enter Daffodil Fields

Big Wooldridge Farm, Now Company, to Plant Fifty Acres of Bulbs

A converted potato digger lifts the daffodil bulbs on the Wooldridge Farm at Sidney. The triangular plowshare in front shears off the tops, spilling them on each side.

A subterranean scoop lifts bulbs and earth on to a revolving rack which shakes off the dirt, dropping the bulbs back to the earth practically in the same places where they grew.

By A.L.P.S.

IT ALL BEGAN because A. B. Wooldridge, retired businessman from Winnipeg, wanted to keep a gardener to look after his two acres at Gordon Head.

So he bought a few bulbs to help pay the hired man's wages. That was in 1925. Today the Wooldridge Bulb Farm has been turned into a limited company with a capitalization of $100,000.

It has thirteen acres in bulbs—fifty tons of daffodil stock, millions of irises and hundreds of thousands of tulips.

This fall the Wooldridge Bulb Farm Limited expects to plant twenty-five acres of bulbs to become the largest bulb farm in Canada. Already an agent of theirs in Holland has reserved twenty-five tons of King Alfred daffodils and expects to buy at least thirty to forty tons.

In a couple of years the company expects to increase their planting to fifty acres, but there is no limit, according to Ray Wooldridge, young manager and son of A. B. Wooldridge.

The older Wooldridge pulled out of his second business to retire again in Gordon Head last February. Perhaps another contingency will occur and he'll start something new, but at the present time he is content to sit back and leave the farm to his son.

Ray Wooldridge has fitted himself thoroughly for this bulb-growing business, which probably requires more technical knowledge than any other phase of agriculture. He started on his father's plantation when he was still at school. In order to get a wider experience of cultural methods in the Pacific Northwest, he worked for a number of months on the huge bulb fields of Washington and Oregon, where the best bulbs in the world are now grown.

Young and enterprising, his farm is run by young men who place their faith in modern mechanized equipment. No daffodil is dug by hand. A converted potato digger drawn by a great steel tractor does the work much faster and with less damage.

A clattering grading machine sorts the bulbs into their various sizes. Even the easily bruised iris bulbs are graded by machine, special revolving tubes aiding the bulbs into thirty-four different slots. A huge hot water bath and a vacuum tank which looks like some kind of instrument for shooting the stars sterilizes the bulbs, while a special refrigerated chamber keeps the flowers fresh after picking.

The bulb plantations, which are spread in a mile circle around the main Wooldridge farm at Sidney, were a wonderful sight when I visited them a short time ago. A lot of other people thought so, too, and there was a regular stream of visitors. Leaning against a wire fence that surrounded acres of daffodils set in the lovely scenery of Brentwood Bay, Ray Wooldridge made an excellent guide.

Best Varieties Of Tree Fruits To Plant Here

THE following list of tree fruit varieties recommended by the Department of Agriculture for Vancouver Island is interesting at the present tree-planting time.

The list has been made up not only with regard to the suitability of the varieties from a climatic standpoint, but also from the standpoint of possible market values both present and future.

Growers who already have old trees in their orchards may very well change to these recommended varieties by grafting.

Apples—Yellow Transparent, Wealthy, Gravenstein, Golden Delicious, Wagner, Vanderpool Red. Other commendable varieties: Duchesse, Alexander, Cox's Orange, Ontario, Spy.

Crabapple—Hyalop.

Pears—Dr. Jules Guyot, Bartlett, Conference, Bosc, Clairgrou, Anjou, Plums—Monarch, Black Diamond, Bradshaw, Gold, Damson.

Prunes—Italian Prune.

Cherries—Sour: Olivet, Morello. Sweet: Bing, Lambert, Royal Anne. (Descon to pollinate Bing, Lambert and Royal Anne. In ratio 1 to 3.) Quince—Orange, Champion, Bourgeat.

the most important thing for daffodils and bulbs generally," he said. "A lot of people seem to think that as soon as the flower is over the bulb has stopped growing. As a matter of fact at the time of blooming the bulb is at its smallest size."

"Through intensive cultivation we keep the moisture period longer. We cultivate once a week or once every ten days, and hand hoe the whole plantations three times in a season."

"In parts of the United States they spray with glue after the flowers are over to keep the leaves up. You see all the sustenance in the leaves and stalks of the plant come back to the bulbs, and if a leaf falls and cracks or breaks, the bulb loses so much vitality."

Later on, in his home, Mr. Wooldridge told me that the island was an ideal place to grow bulbs and could produce the best bulbs in the world. This was not due to the dry summers here, as some people supposed, but because of the temperate climate. Even in Washington and Oregon, which are the bulb-growing centres of the North American continent, acres have been killed off in the winter time, and thousands of bulbs rot due to the hot summers.

R.C. BULBS BEST

"We have definitely proved that British Columbia bulbs are superior to Dutch bulbs," Mr. Wooldridge said. "We once asked a Dutch representative point blank what percentage of blooms his irises produced under forcing conditions, and he admitted only 80 per cent.

"Here is what the largest forcing house in Western Canada says," he pushed a letter over to me: "Your irises 'produced at least 98 per cent flowers and all graded No. 1."

"Our daffodils produce as high as 200 per cent blooms two weeks earlier than Dutch daffodils in greenhouses. We are now studying temperature control of bulbs after digging to make them earlier still."

"As far as I know, British Columbia bulbs have not proved themselves yet for forcing purposes. However, with a little more knowledge, I don't see why we can't make a success out of tulips as well, as they are getting good results with these bulbs under similar conditions in Washington and Oregon."

Bulbs require so much knowledge that Mr. Wooldridge has found that casual help at harvesting time is not very good. In order to keep on a larger crew the farm is going in for gladioli as well.

In their constant search for moisture-holding land, the Wooldridges moved from Gordon Head to Sidney. Now the younger Wooldridge is contemplating moving to the river all beds of Duncan, which he believes more closely approximate the fen country of England and the dyke country of Holland, where most of the bulbs in the world are grown.

Perennials Need Large Beds For Best Results

By HORACE WHITEOAK, F.R.H.S.

A PERENNIAL is a plant that lives more than two years. When the gardener speaks of perennials he usually has herbaceous plants in mind, although trees and shrubs are also perennials. Herbaceous plants produce flowers on perennial root stocks.

Different kinds of perennials may be used for whatever situation happens to confront the gardener. Some like a full sun, others are happy in the bog garden or in shade. A little care and study will soon set one right in the adaptation of plants to the situation best suited to them.

It is easier to work out a color scheme in a large perennial border than it is in one of small dimensions, and for the narrow border it would, perhaps, be better to plant annuals. Perennials need ample space to get the best color effect, and this can be had in some of the larger gardens.

The perennial border is more economical than that planted with annuals and is easier to maintain during the hottest days of the year. The site of the herbaceous border is usually determined by the layout of the grounds, and may be along the side of the drive or bordering the lawn. Wherever it is, enough width should be allowed that a cramped and over-planted appearance is not in evidence.

LASTS FOR YEARS

planted, lasts for years, and will give the most pleasing effects if the plants are kept well thinned out, and an adequate amount of food supplied to the soil each year. The best site for the perennial border is one facing south. An open and unshaded position is necessary if a wide selection of the most desirable plants is wanted. One need not despair should the garden be shaded somewhat. There are perennials which give a good account of themselves even under these seemingly adverse conditions. Perennials planted near hedges, and where the roots of large trees rob the soil of its fertility, rarely do well.

A perennial border may be planted to hide an ugly board fence, and at the same time derive benefit from the protection of the fence. Herbaceous borders may be straight or curved. It all depends on the landscaping of the garden. Some gardens are built on straight lines, whilst others lend themselves to graceful curves.

Color schemes can be carried out to the liking of the owner, but when planting a mixed border it would be best to first make a plan and carefully figure out the most suitable plants. A perennial border need not be kept to the strict notion of the tallest at the back and shortest at the front; nothing could be more boring than this, and many a scheme is ruined because of the uniform appearance and flatness of the plants. There is no reason why some of the medium tall varieties could not be brought forward toward the front, forming bays as it were, and thus breaking the monotony of the aforementioned.

VICTORIA BIRDS

Professor Straight Discusses Beloved But Mischievous Robin and Woodland's Varied Thrush

By E. M. STRAIGHT

Experimental Station, Saanichton

THIS large thrush, commonly called the robin, is so well known that description is hardly necessary. It was given the name of robin by the early settlers of Massachusetts, because it resembled somewhat in color the little red-breasted robin of England. At present it is known as the robin throughout America, so known and loved by children everywhere.

It nests by preference in an apple tree near farm buildings, but almost any place will do, such as an overhanging eave, a wall overgrown with ivy or a nook or shelf over a cottage door. The nest is usually strengthened with mud, but not always.

The robin prefers to have a roof over its nest, and, therefore, places it in such a situation that the growing leaves will shade it from the sun and provide shelter. However, its position is not always well chosen for a heavy summer shower brings more robins' nests to the ground than we like to contemplate.

While the robin is a famous splasher if water is available, a robin's nest is notoriously dirty within, and so carelessly constructed of weed-stalks, grass and mud that one is surprised that it holds together as long as it does.

Too much stress may have been placed on the mischief done by the robins in the cherry trees and strawberry patches, and too little upon the quantity of worms and insects they devour. Professor Treadwell, who experimented upon some young robins kept in captivity, learned that they ate sixty-eight earthworms daily; that is, each bird ate 41 per cent more than its own weight in twelve hours. The length of these worms, if laid end to end would be about fourteen feet.

VARIED THRUSH

The varied thrush, also known as the Oregon robin, wood robin and painted robin. About the size of a robin and very robin-like in general appearance, but strikingly unlike in details of color. Like a robin with sharp black breast-bar, reddish eyebrow-line, wing-bars and spots on flight feathers.

Field marks—A robin variegated as above.

The varied thrush is primarily a bird of the woods, preferring the tall timber in some shady dell. Its apparent native modesty and retiring disposition, its love for shade and solitude, seem to be prominent characteristics of this sylvan recluse. Still, of recent years the bird is often found about the haunts of men, particularly in places where it is protected, and where large and clustering shade trees afford it cool retreats.

Some birds, out of excessive happiness, sing near their nests, but the varied thrush is too wise for that. She sings far from the nest, and invites you, as her song has been freely translated in its opening notes: "Come to me" away from her blue eggs cradled in ambush.

Giant Cosmos Is Aim

When a cosmos in Sam D. Craig's garden at 58 Sims Avenue, Saanichton, kept on growing like a weed after it passed the normal height of cosmos last year, neighbors said that it would have small or few flowers. At its peak of seven and a half feet the cosmos burst into a mass of bloom.

Now Mr. Craig, who is shown in the picture beside his plant, is saving the seeds and hoping to raise a variety of giant cosmos from it.

Coronation Inspires Mode's Crowning Hit

Style Without Age

Little girls who wear party dresses as pretty as these need not worry about winning at hide-and-go-seek or drop-the-handkerchief. They will get plenty of smiles and attention anyway. At the left is a princess frock of navy blue silk, embroidered in spaced cross-stitch design in varied colors. The high collar is finished with a plaited organdy frill. The other (right) is brown silk taffeta, embroidered in a blue and white motif of pots of cacti. The round collar of self material is topped by a slightly smaller, plain white crepe one. Sleeves are puffed, and skirt slightly flared.

Perfect for the Coronation is this smart three-piece suit, worn with a pale pink chiffon Ascot and a corsage of lilies-of-the-valley. The neat, nipped-in-at-the-waist jacket and trim skirt are navy bengaline. The swagger topcoat of sheer navy wool has lapels, pocket flaps, and cuffs of bengaline to match.

A truly dramatic evening gown for Coronation nights in London is of pure white silk crepe with bands of gold and silver embroidery in Paisley motif. Notice the intricate draping of the skirt and the slit which reminds us that skirts will be shorter next season. A matching scarf can be draped about the head or worn across the shoulders.

Seasoning Works Wonders

For a delicious spring luncheon, try apple cider with toasted pimento cheese sandwiches made in multiple layers and served with a generous accompaniment of green olives.

ON DAYS I am bored with life and three meals a day, I go out into the kitchen and experiment with seasoning. I cannot emphasize too often the opportunities for cook's amusement and family pleasure that lie in your condiment pots and jars.

Of course, you must use gumption in choosing seasoning. Don't kill the flavor of your food with your cinnamon or allspice or pepper. But while the soup that has been salted with too heavy a hand often seems like a tragedy, the tasteless dish is even more so. Desserts, candies and sweets of all kinds gain in flavor if a few grains of salt are added. Any combination containing milk or cream requires salt. Even coffee is more delicious if a bit of salt goes into the fusion.

SUGAR HELPS VEGETABLES

Sugar is another everyday seasoning that works wonders when judiciously used. Unless vegetables are fresh from the garden a little sugar is needed to brighten their natural sweetness. Tomatoes must always have a dash of sugar. Roasts develop a richer flavor when a bit of sugar is rubbed into the surface. All dressings and sauces containing lemon juice or vinegar need some sugar.

Both sugar and salt are helpful in blending several flavors into a smooth combination. Highly spiced sauces and baked-stuffs are very dependent on skillful seasoning with salt and sugar.

As a seasoning for meat and dark sauces, black pepper is more effective than white because the real strength of the pepper berry is found in the outer shells of which black pepper is made. You need two pepper mills in your house, a wooden one for the kitchen and a pewter one, say, for the dining table. This insures freshly ground pepper for all seasoning purposes.

Cayenne pepper is something else again and must be used very sparingly, but a deft use of it lends zest to many a dish.

In soups, sauces and salads or with fish, meats and vegetables paprika's mild flavor is an addition. Its vivid color makes it an excellent garnish, too. Remember, though, there are two kinds—the Hungarian one which is pungent and the Spanish which is very mild.

Cream of lima bean soup made faintly pink with paprika is nice served with toasted pimento cheese squares and olives.

TOASTED PIMENTO CHEESE SQUARES
Ten slices of bread, cut 1/4 inch thick, 1 1/2 cups Canadian cream cheese, 3 tablespoons chopped pimento, 4 tablespoons butter.

The packaged cheese works up easily and smoothly. Mash cheese, add butter and pimento and mix until blended. Place five slices of bread, one on top of the other with cheese filling between. Repeat with remaining slices of bread. Put in refrigerator until firm, about one half hour. Slice each mound of bread into 4 slices. Bake in a moderately hot

BY MARIAN YOUNG

FOR THOSE women lucky enough to be going to London's Coronation ceremony, fashionists agree that a formal (dresy but not fussy) suit is the correct thing to wear on the big day. Your most precious furs, white gloves and a corsage will see you through in fine style.

If you have good seats, your husband probably will wear striped trousers, a cutaway and high silk hat. If not, a dark business suit. In either case, however, you'll dress as you would for an Easter parade.

MAY BE A BIT MISTY OR NIPPY

Remember that London is likely to be chilly in May, so consider a suit with its own topcoat or take one which looks well over it. You may hate the idea of wearing a coat, but you hate the idea of catching cold even more, don't you?

One important store suggests a tailored suit of navy bengaline with fine wool hiplength swagger topcoat, trimmed with bengaline. The suit jacket is buttoned down the front and nipped in at the waist. The skirt has three gores in the front. The topcoat, with bengaline lapels, pocket flaps and cuffs, flares gracefully.

Another shop features a neat suit of beige with a red fox cape.

CROWNING A KING IS DRESSY BUSINESS

London, especially during the Coronation season, is one place where you cannot overdress. You will need simple dinner ensembles for the boat but not for Merry Old England. Take along all the formal evening gowns you can lay hands on. And the more formal they are, the better.

In addition to evening gowns, pack at least two dresy frocks for luncheons and teas. One can be chiffon wool, the other silk—perhaps a print.

An adequate wardrobe for one who is making a rather quick trip might include two suits—the formal one for the Coronation and a tweed model for the boat, abutting and sight-seeing on coolish days and week-ends in the country. Take several extra sweaters, jackets and blouses to wear with the second suit.

Do not make the mistake of worrying too much about clothes for the boat. The seasoned ocean traveler wears the same tweed suit, day after day, varying it a bit with jackets or sweaters. She is likely to be seen in the same dinner dress every night of the voyage, too—except the night of the captain's dinner. Then she puts on an evening gown.

Perfect Frosting Secret Open to All

BY MARY E. DAGUE

YOU OUGHT to have heard them. You'd have thought it was at least the Ethiopian situation or the latest Hollywood scandal. But no, a whole roomful of women had worked themselves into a perfect lather about how easy it is nowadays to make a perfect cake frosting!

No wonder—when you think how is used to be a matter completely of happenstance when one turned out all right.

Just what is a perfect frosting? First of all there's flavor, obtained by fine materials, but also a perfect blending of the frosting with the cake. Second is texture. The frosting must feel fine-grained and creamy on the tongue. Furthermore the perfect frosting must hold its shape, have a glossy appearance, remain moist on standing and cut without cracking.

The surest and simplest method of getting a delectable frosting, the women agreed, is to use light corn syrup with the sugar. The corn syrup gives no flavor, but makes and keeps the frosting soft and smooth. Be sure to measure accurately, however, for too much syrup makes for gumminess.

The length of time for cooking or the temperature of the frosting syrup is another important point in the making of frostings. Sugar-cookery thermometers are a decided help for the making of uniformly perfect frostings, since they eliminate all guesswork as to whether the syrup is cooked enough.

When you plan a cake dessert the rest of the meal should be low in starch and sugar. Unless you keep this in mind it's only too easy to let the dinner lose its balance. A menu built around baked or broiled fish with spinach timbale, buttered carrots and fruit salad finishes nicely with cake.

CHOCOLATE PEPPERMINT CAKE

Two cups sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup butter or other shortening, 1 1/4 cups granulated sugar, 1 egg, 3 squares baking chocolate, 1/2 cup rich sour cream, 1/4 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon soda.

Sift flour once, measure and add soda and salt and sift three times.

Creamy frosting made with corn syrup topped by a ring of chocolate flakes adds to the delight of any cake.

Cream butter, slowly add sugar and cream thoroughly. Add egg, unbeaten, and beat hard. Add chocolate which has been melted over hot water and mix well. Add about 1/4 the flour, beat well and beat in sour cream. Add remaining flour alternately with milk, beating until smooth after each addition. Add vanilla and turn into two oiled and floured nine-inch layer pans and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for thirty minutes. Spread peppermint frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake. Decorate with a one-inch border of chocolate flakes.

Merriman Talks

JOHNNY FEARS the wrestling referee kind of left me holding the sack this week. Met him the other day and got into a discussion on wrestlers and how they put on weight with particular reference to Baptiste Thomas, who weighed in at 160 pounds when he started in at the mat game and now tips the beam at 225.

JOHN had a lot of information on the subject of what wrestlers eat and how they collect weight without getting fat. One of them a few hours before a bout buys himself a cooked chicken and a bottle of wine, returns to his hotel, reclines on his bed, tears the chicken apart, consumes the bottle of wine and the chicken and then goes to sleep. Another always goes back to the kitchen of a restaurant, selects his food and supervises the cooking. Quite a few are vegetarians on the principle of being strong as a bull that feeds on grass.

John was going to give me an article on the subject. He disappointed me, however. No article came, so we will paraphrase again instead.

MORE ABOUT KISSING

PREVIOUS reference to co-eds and kissing have prompted a couple of contributions to the discussion.

One reader points out the Roman poet Catto asserted the custom of kissing came into being that the menfolk might more readily discover if their wives had been tasting wine.

Another points out that kissing in public is a crime in Japan, which is rather strange because mixed bathing in the nude is considered to be quite within the bounds of the Oriental sense of modesty.

Let's drop the whole subject. I don't know anything about it anyway.

NO BEAUTY

HARRY FIRTH told one. A logger, obviously celebrating on his trip to town, breezed into his beauty parlor the other day with a ten days' growth of beard and hair badly in need of the shears. "Fixah me up! S-s-shave an' hair cut an' everything," said the logger.

"But you've made a mistake. You want a barber's. This is a beauty parlor," said Harry.

"Beauty parlor!" Beauty parlor!" said the logger fixing Harry with an inebriated glare. "H—, you're no beauty."

Local clubman invited to a convention at Spokane, showed me a circular letter of invitation. He was informed "you can check your wife for two dollars," and was asked to write "yes" or "no" after the question, "Do you want a date with one of Spokane's most charming and beautiful girls?"

ON THE MALAHAT

HUNTER—"Hey, Bill!" Bill—"Yeah!" Hunter—"Are you all right?" Bill—"Sure." Hunter—"Then I've shot a deer."

Talking of hunting, here's a quote from Frank Goldie, Cowichan farmer: "Every pheasant should be poisoned. They are only of value to 'big bugs' who can afford to hire land on which to shoot them. Look what they did to my peas," and he showed samples of young peas they had torn up.

As long as we are talking about Cowichan you may safely place a bet that Hugh Savage will be independent candidate for the riding again at the provincial battle.

JUBILEE SUGGESTION

WAS ASKED to throw out a suggestion for the Jubilee celebrations here. It was that on one day all the men in Victoria dress in feminine style, while all the women don male attire. It was suggested as an event that would have great publicity possibilities.

After the frosty reception given to the all-grow-beards idea I doubt if this one will get far.

SOUVENIRS

CHATTED with a storekeeper who had loaded up with souvenir mugs and other articles for the expected Coronation of King Edward VIII. "I got a good buy and bought heavily," he said.

"Then the King abdicated and I saw myself going into the red. It looked like a total loss. But the people who make a hobby of collecting useless bric-a-brac came to the rescue. These mugs and other souvenirs immediately became 'collectors' items.' To the men who have that particular hobby they assumed a value they never would have had if Edward had not abdicated."

If this business of collecting out-of-date mugs looks odd to you, that is only because nearly all hobbies look odd unless you actually follow them yourself.

PROSIT

"Don't worry lest beer will make you fat. A survey by a brewing expert reveals that while beer has a definite food value, that value is less than in the average bottle of carbonated beverage, milk, grape juice, cocoa or coffee with cream and sugar." That's by Neal O'Hara in a New York paper, and seems an apt contribution to a discussion started by a recent article on the subject.

Island Ski Paradise

Forbidden Plateau Attracts Many Enthusiasts; Twenty-five Ski New Year-In

Tiny dots in the vast expanse of the snow, these skiers plod up the side of Mount Beecher.

But to every climb there is always a descent, and on top of the world, at last, they whisk over the rolling tableland of the Forbidden Plateau.

By PETER STURSBURG

THIS ISLAND's Forbidden Plateau offers the finest ski country on the Pacific Coast.

This is the opinion of no less authorities than Eric A. Laurillard, judge of the Canadian Ski Association, and Gus Johnson, Vancouver slalom champion, whose only loss in recent international meets was to Hjalmar Hvam, ranked No. 2 skier in the United States.

These men who have been in every known ski country on the Pacific Coast definitely state their view in a letter to the Tourist Bureau of the Courtney-Comox Board of Trade and offer to be held personally responsible for it.

"Anyone who disagrees with this idea will soon change his mind after coming up here," Messrs. Laurillard and Johnson write.

Their letter was another feather in the cap of Clinton Wood, veteran pioneer of this strange table land, 150 miles from Victoria. The sparse stunted trees in this fantastic "mid-summer night's dream" country, 4,000 feet above the sea level, made him believe it would make an ideal winter playground.

Now ski experts have surpassed him in even his most optimistic moments and ski enthusiasts, bruised but happy, voice their approval as they stumble back into his base lodge after a strenuous day on the snow blanketed plateau.

SKIING REALLY began in the Forbidden Plateau this year. Last year a few enthusiasts made their way up, but this year from 200 to 300 people have registered at Wood's Lodge already and the skiing is by no means over yet.

Chris Johnson and Thor Jacobsen who have the good Scandinavian names necessary for successful ski instructors, teach the wobbly-legged beginners how to keep perpendicular on the seven-foot runners. A club to be known as the Forbidden Plateau Ski Club has been tentatively formed. This club will hold its final organizational meeting at Wood's Lodge on May 24.

There are enough skills, harnesses, skis, boots and what-not to fit even the most naive little miss who thinks high-heeled shoes can be got on to a pair of skis. Even when twenty-five people packed the lodge on New Year's Eve and Easter week ends, there was enough equipment to go around and only four brought their own skis.

In order to get in as much skiing as possible on the week-ends, they ski day and night at the Forbidden Plateau. Skiing by moonlight has its hazard, not least of which are the romantic ones, but skiing under the floodlights on the cleared slopes outside Wood's lodge is as safe as can be. On New Year's Eve they skied until 1.30 o'clock in the morning.

The lodge is perched 2,000 feet up on the rampart of mountains that guard the Forbidden Plateau. It is about fifteen miles from Courtney and there is a zig-zagging road up to the lodge door which is kept clear of snow in winter.

Skiers climb up to the alpine club's lodge at the peak of Mount Beecher where they usually stop to brew themselves a cup of tea. The harder ones penetrate into the For-

It's Spring

By Helen Welshimer

IT'S spring, and I've lost the old desire. For a gipsy patterning; I who once hunted dark green stars To pack in a silver can. It's spring and the gipsy violins Are playing the whole night through. And the wind is sweet with rivers of rain; And I wait, I wait for you!

I've spread the table with yellow cloth; All the daffodils I could pick Are standing around in copper bowls. I've lighted a candle-stick. Darling, darling, the wanderlust, Has galloped across the hill. I'll settle down in any town, Oh, love me still!

Now You Tell One Says Ananias Ace

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:—It makes me quite peeved to have to read constantly in your paper articles appearing from my writer friends, Mrs. Nellie McClung, Robert Connell, Audrey Alexandra Brown, E. M. Straight and others, while I have to stand by and take it. Jealous, I should say so.

Why, only lately I was accepted into the fellowship of that noted company known as the Round Table of Victoria, descendants no doubt of those famous and mighty knights who graced the round table in King Arthur's halls at ancient Tintagel.

Once each year it is the custom of these hon. gentlemen to hold what they call an Ananias evening. You can picture me easily as a very lamb among wolves, as I sat with an uneasy conscience inherited from a long line of severe Presbyterian forebears (and some nuisance it is when you wish to drive a hard Scotch bargain), listening to the horrible yarns that came from these respectable business men. I tell you that it was terrible to watch the minute hand of the old clock in the corner as it steadily turned round to point straight at me as my turn came. I had to force myself to rise on shaking limbs, realizing that as a member in what is supposed to be good standing in a responsible religious organization in the city, that it was my duty to protest vigorously against such "goings on." What was our surprise, however, on examining the cup put up for competition, to learn that it had been donated by a high church official in the same congregation to which I belong.

Well, that was a responsibility and worry off our shoulders, so I could commence by telling that my only remaining peeve was in having read recently in a certain magazine a story of a happening purporting to have taken place away east in Quebec, when, as a matter of fact, having been an eye-witness of the event, I knew that it had occurred in Manitoba some twenty odd years ago. The incident happened just off the mouth of Netley Creek. Netley Creek empties into Lake Winnipeg near the mouth of the Red River. The Red River, as you all know, rises in the extremely hot lands of South Minnesota. When, then, in the autumn of the year, this nearly-boiling water flows into the icy waters of Lake Winnipeg, it makes a real fog. Fog, I say, not this thin pea-soup variety of which Vancouver and Seattle are so ashamed, but real solid fog, the kind you can break off in chunks and throw at a man; and I am here to state that it hurts.

"HONK, HONK"

WELL, ON THIS particular morning four of us were going out duck shooting. Bill Hunter was poling the boat along just outside the reeds. You could not row it as the oars got all tangled up in the thick fog. Next in front of him was Kirk Carland. Poor old Kirk, he has gone to the happy hunting grounds these many moons, but I can still hear his hearty laugh when anything amusing occurred. A good old sport he was, and a crack shot, and I'll bet there was something stirring when he hit the trail up yonder.

The third man was Oesle Shore, and if anyone doubts what I am telling, you have only to look up Oesle, who still lives in Vancouver, and tell him that Alex Sutherland told you this yarn, and Oesle will tell you that if so, it must be true, and I can vouch for Oesle's hatred for anything resembling an upstooth.

Well, as we were working our way along, all at once we heard "honk, honk." We all knew what that meant—Canada grey geese, the big ones, and they appeared to be coming straight at us. Bill dropped his pole in the bottom of the boat and grabbed his gun and commenced trying to force it up through the fog. In a minute we could hear the swish, swish of the great wings as the birds ploughed their way through the thick fog. Bill got the gun as straight up as he could and, taking a chance shot, let fly, bang, bang. From where I was in the front of the boat I could just faintly see two thin red streaks of fire through the fog, and shortly heard two dull rumbling roars, like you hear when they are putting off blasts at the cement quarry at Brentwood

Culinary Contest

Radio Raises Cooking to Rank of Major Sport

By HELEN WELSHIMER

AT LAST COOKING has been elevated to the ranks of a featured sports tournament. After centuries of baking, boiling, stewing, frying and roasting, the art of food preparation gains the place it deserves.

For scores of years we have gone out of our way to make opportunities for women to demonstrate their skill in new fields. Yet, her oldest industry, the one at which she is most experienced never before played the big-time.

The other night a commentator stood before a microphone and gave the audience a play by play account as vanilla was measured and eggs were broken by six housewives, winners of the continent-wide cooking competition, who went to New York to defend their sections as they pitted their abilities against one another. The next night and the next, the contestants lined up at the Woman's National Exposition to test their skillet skill.

And the cheering crowds at the Woman's National Exposition of Arts and Industries loved it! Loved it more than the parade of skilful fingers across the typewriter keys which proclaimed the best stenographer of the year—loved it more than any contest entered by the few who follow the new, strange ways.

RECOGNITION OF SKILL BRINGS AWAITED THRILL

Last year, the Women's Exposition, believing that something should be done about the work in which the great majority of women engage, staged a cooking contest minus the fanfare and the drums. This year it became an event.

The trophies from the jungle, the new oil silk kitchen curtains, the doll collection, the model houses—dozens and dozens of fascinating features are part of the exhibition; but without a doubt, the committee sounds its truest note when it considers the family cooks who fill the cookie jars and the bread boxes, can the fruits and bake the potatoes of the nation.

There isn't a woman anywhere who ever saw a blue ribbon or red ribbon pinned on her pear preserves or chocolate cake, at a county fair, who didn't feel a glad thrill of pride. For such a long time, the county and states fairs have been all that she could enter. Now, at last, Broadway gives her a chance with all the set-up needed for a successful show. She doesn't need to cultivate the recipes of French chefs. In fact, the cooking is a strict disciple of the good old home tradition. Listen to the menus which were submitted by the six national entrants: a pinwheel meat loaf menu; a salmon loaf menu; a barbecued chicken menu; a Virginia ham menu; a baked ham menu, and a roast breast of lamb menu.

There isn't a woman with a family who probably hasn't prepared most of them scores of times.

ON A PAR WITH BATHING BEAUTIES AT LONG LAST

There has been a tendency, as women have striven for recognition, to desire honorable mention in strange, new fields. Woman has believed that she must veer away from the homeliness of the familiar in order to win green laurels. She herself has been partly responsible. She hasn't insisted that her home-making work be given the position in society which it deserves. Therefore, the fact that the Woman's Exposition, in its ever widening scope of interests and activities, has turned back to feature a homely, happy service is good news to the housewives of the land.

Sees Youth Uprising

AN UPRISING on the part of modern youth against party politics and intrigues during 1937, is predicted in the annual booklet of prophecy issued by the Rosicrucian Order, Amore. Modern youth, it is declared, has become aware of the tyrannical methods frequently employed by party leaders to gain their ends without consideration of consequences which may involve the next generation in wars, economic strife and social upheaval.

Centres throughout the world will be formed of progressive young men and women whose duty it will be to analyze every bill presented to their respective governments which may place a lien upon their future personal freedom or jeopardize their opportunity by excessive taxation, or because of dangerous international pacts and alliances. Pressure will be exerted to alter unfavorable political inclinations or expose corruption by extensive propaganda. Veiled issues in political platforms will be revealed to hasty voters by special committees of the Youth Movement. This youth alliance, it is asserted, will become a board of political censorship which will threaten the power of all existing political parties.

Alice M. Bonshor of 521 Simcoe Street, local member of the order, states that the annual booklets of prophecy issued from the Rosicrucian Grand Lodge in San Jose, California, are based upon a study of the cycles of human tendencies and trends, and are not founded upon any method of fantastic prognostications. Some of the other predictions for 1937 are the control of vocations and professions by the state to prevent their corruption due to overcrowding; a world crusade of the various religions to prevent suppression by governments who attempt to regulate religious freedom; a sharp swing of all classes throughout Great Britain toward Fascism.

and you are three or four miles away. Then suddenly an enormous goose fell ker-splash right into the water by the boat. I reached out quickly and grabbed hold of it for fear that it might only be wounded and escape, when only a yard or two behind it, flip, flop, down came a beautiful big red fox that had been chasing the geese on top of the fog.

Now, Nellie McClung, you tell one.

Tarzan's Quest

Tarzan drew closer to the two recumbent figures. By the man's regular breathing, he knew that Yendi slept; but his slumber was not yet deep enough to satisfy the ape-man. He must take the girl by stealth, for he had no wish to arouse the Kavarra warrior.

In Tarzan's eyes was the determination to save the black girl; but far away in the jungle, eyes of sinister import were turned on Tarzan's mate, the covetous eyes of Prince Shorov. "I'll go with you into the jungle to look for aid," he repeated sulkily.

"Why, Alexis," cried the scandalized princess, "think of Jane's reputation. If you go, I'll go, too." "That's right," Jane's husband stammered, "making a burden of yourself again. You got us into this mess, you old fool-yes and your elixir of youth."

Alexis caught his breath and resumed, "Why, you've had your face lifted so many times it's a disgrace! You and your... Jane's sharp look halted his furious retort. "I had no intention of taking you," she said; "I go alone, at dawn!"
